The New Zealand National Bibliography (NZNB) contains catalogue records for the New Zealand imprint. It is produced monthly (12 issues per year). The National Library of New Zealand has responsibility for producing the Bibliography. Most of the material listed is received by the National Library of New Zealand under the Legal Deposit provisions of the National Library Act 1965, Section 30A, amended 1994. It includes New Zealand and Tokelau books, serials, newspapers, music, maps, videos, sound recordings, kits, and pictures. Items are included after they have been received at the National Library. The catalogue records produced meet international standards.

This document contains all the items that have been catalogued during the month of February 2018. The items are grouped under the main subject schedules of the Dewey Decimal Classification system. Within each subject grouping the items are arranged alphabetically by title.

<td>Summary</td>
<td>&quot;Inspirational blogger Makaia Carr left school at 16 and was pregnant with her first child a year later. In her own words, she was a 'Maori teen mum from the 'Naki' who others expected to end up on the DPB. Instead she worked her way up through the fashion industry, launched her own online fitness community and clothing brand, and is now in demand as a motivational speaker and social media influencer. She has overcome depression and what she now recognises was an unhealthy relationship with her body, to promote a message of self-love and empowerment. In Keeping it Real, Makaia openly shares her struggles and the strategies that help her to maintain a positive body image and outlook. Her story is a reminder that physical and emotional well-being starts with self-acceptance. As she says, &quot;self-loathing is imprisonment; self-love is liberation&quot;--Publisher information.</td>

ISBN 9780473386306 paperback

Physical Details vii, 121 pages ; 23 cm
Summary "Have you ever been faced with a life changing event, a mountain of a problem, a tragedy or life stopping moment? Have your struggled to overcome the pain, to make the right choice, to live with the consequences? In this book Reflections in the Face of Change, Author Linda Gurey shares her life changing story, when her husband reveals to her in six painful words that "he wants to become a woman": Linda reflects on her thinking and her fears, her loss of hope and confusion, It was like a Mountain crashed down and cast a shadow over my life". Linda hopes this book will inspire the reader to apply the basic principles of what she has learned, to enable others to have the courage to face their problems and pain, no matter how big they seem, to learn from the good and bad choices, to grow from experience and to have the acceptance that people in this world are different. This book is real, it shares Linda's pain and growth, the amazing struggle that she has with choosing to do what she thinks is right, or choosing what friends and family want her to do. Reflections in the Face of Change is truly a journey of courage, growth and acceptance. It reminds us all that no matter what we face in life, it is not those events that define us, it is our thinking and the meaning that we apply to those events, that define our reality"--Back cover.

After two-and-half thousand years, his sophisticated theories are still ahead of our time. Lao ZI's principle of physics entails that Dao in its manifestation of Qi will inevitably maintain the multitude of Yin-Yang balances comprising our universe. Therefore, his principle of psychology holds that people can only maximize their success by aligning with Dao. Summary "Too many New Zealand children are mired in dysfunction. But though the problems are bleak, we needn’t throw in the towel. Effective family intervention programmes hold out real hope of change, of reversing the slide into dysfunction. Maxim Institute’s Broken Boughs looks at what these programmes are ...This report focuses on two family problems, child abuse and neglect, and anti-social behaviour/ conduct problems, and programmes that respond to them"--Publisher's website.

Christchurch schools tell their earthquake stories. Queenspark School.

A number of students were interviewed by their schoolmates (Georgia Kirk, Florence and "Flo" Carrier) at the Queenspark School where they were located when the earthquake of 2011 struck. What did they do? How did they react? The students speak of their emotions and actions during a time when most were not around adults, but instead on playgrounds and had to rely on each other. The interviewers are also interviewees, as well as many other students, a parent, teachers and the school principal. The film provides a document of their experiences from the students' perspective.

ISBN  9780473423193
Physical Details  93 pages : colour illustrations ; 22 cm
Summary  "Polls show that at least three-quarters of New Zealanders want a law change to allow those terminally ill and suffering intolerably to end their lives painlessly and with dignity. Yet it has been 14 years since Parliament failed by just two votes to pass legislation allowing medical assistance to die and our politicians have kept their heads in the sand ever since. People continue to die cruel, agonizingly painful, deaths in New Zealand every day. Many suffer horribly for days, some for weeks, while others linger at death's door for months waiting for merciful relief. This compilation of their stories illustrates graphically why the law should be changed"--Back cover.

Summary  "For almost a decade, the idea of social investment has been a major focus of New Zealand policy-making and policy debate. The broad aim has been to address serious social problems and improve long-term fiscal outcomes by drawing on big data and deploying various analytical techniques to enable more evidence-informed policy interventions. But recent approaches to social investment have been controversial. In late 2017, the new Labor-New Zealand First government announced a review of the previous government's policies. As ideas about social investment evolve, this book brings together leading academics, commentators..."
and policy analysts from the public and private sectors to answer three big questions: How should social investment be defined and conceptualized? How should it be put into practice? In what policy domains can it be most productively applied? As governments in New Zealand and abroad continue to explore how best to tackle major social problems, this book is essential for people seeking to understand social policy in the twenty-first century"--Back cover.

Summary  "The post-1945 migration to the cities by Māori transformed Aotearoa New Zealand forever. Before the Second World War 90% of Māori lived in rural tribal communities; by the mid-1970s almost 80% lived in the cities—perhaps the fastest movement of any population from traditional homelands to the cities. Economic opportunity improved the lot of many but created huge disruption and challenges, making this a story of expectation, need, loss, isolation and revival. Exploring what being Māori means today, Urban Māori looks back to the experience of the first migrants, and traces the course of urbanisation over succeeding years. The opening chapter introduces the reader to the facts of Māori internal migration, pan-tribalism and adaptation in the modern world. Each subsequent chapter loosely follows a decade from 1940 to 2010, recounting key events and experiences of those periods that were influenced by factors such as urbanisation, assimilation and later retribalisation. Specific chapters describe crucial developments that arose out of urbanisation—such as Māori trade-training courses, Māori collectives like the Māori Women's Welfare League, the Urban Māori Authorities and urban marae. This narrative flow stretches overseas to Māori in Australia, and also investigates the phenomenon of urban families returning home to reconnect with their tribal roots. Woven through the historical account are profiles of individuals and whānau, recounting their migration journeys to the cities since World War II and their diverse experiences of urban life. Urban Māori thereby balances its grounding in the wealth of academic research on Māori urbanisation with new insights into the realities of urban Māori lives, and explores the idea of cultural adaptability in this new environment through the eyes of those who have lived in the experience."--Front flap.

<td>&quot;Years of record breaking drought, ferocious winds, searing summer temperatures of up to 40 degrees celsius and freezing winters of down to -15 degrees celsius are not the ideal conditions to create a 5-star garden of national significance. Despite these extreme conditions, Penny Zino is celebrating fifty years since she and husband John began creating Flaxmere Garden, and the work's not over yet. Flaxmere Garden: 50 years of extremes tells the captivating story of how Penny and John Zino battled the extremes to successfully create their 3.2 hectare garden. The theme of extremes also applies to how the personal circumstances of the Zino family have shaped the development of the garden. Lavishly illustrated with over 80 pages of full-colour images, Flaxmere Garden: 50 years of extremes shares Penny's design philosophy, along with her choice of plants and planting combinations, and her valuable insights gained from fifty years spent creating an award-winning garden in a challenging environment&quot;--Back cover.</td>

Title: Lethal mystery illnesses and the dark side of genetic engineering : prompted by three unexplained sudden deaths in Dunedin in August 2003 / by Donald J. Beswick.

Author: Beswick, D. J. (Donald James), 1939- author.

ISBN: 9780908578801

Physical Details: 72 pages ; 21 cm

Contents: Viral infection -- Method of dissemination -- Surveying the lethal literature -- Offensive and defensive research -- Defensive research in the United States in the 1980s -- Research with dual use -- Other research - not so peaceful -- The U.S. coalition and "highly classified endeavours" -- Two classes of biological agents -- Planned incapacitation of Cubans -- Incapacitating agents and "state sponsored programmes" -- Germ warfare experimentation is legal in New Zealand -- The use of propaganda -- Trivialising Tapanui flu -- Highly classified endeavours.

Summary: "In August 2003, three Dunedin residents died suddenly from a mystery illness that caused pulmonary hemorrhage, which means bleeding into the alveoli or air sacs of the lungs. On the TV-1 evening news in the last week of August, a Dunedin doctor commented on the illness and mentioned that the anticoagulant effect in the blood was as though patients had been infected with snake venom. How could this be in a country which has no snakes? The author, a Wellington biomedical engineer, was prompted to further research by news of the mystery deaths and his own experience when infected with M.E. at Wellington Hospital with other staff members more than a decade before. This...book is a wake-up call to what could be happening in our midst. It gives the background to many mystery illnesses and how they found their origins in chemical and germ warfare research initiated by American and British forces in the Second World War, some conducted in Australia and by New Zealanders, including the son of a Prime Minister"--Back cover.

Title  New China eye witness : Roger Duff, Rewi Alley and the Art of Museum Diplomacy = Xin zhongguo de mu ji zhe: luojie · dafu, luyi · aili yu bo wu guan wai jiao / edited by James Beattie and Richard Bullen ; Chinese translation by Xiongbo Shi.

ISBN  9781927145944

Contents  Museum diplomacy and cultural exchange -- Tour party and hosts -- Map showing itinerary of Roger Duff's trip to China -- Diary of a visit to China / Roger Duff -- Selected objects from the Rewi Alley Collection.

Language  In English with parallel text in Chinese.

Summary  "New China Eyewitness is the fascinating account of the 1956 visit to the People’s Republic of China by a group of prominent New Zealanders – including Roger Duff, James Bertram, Evelyn Page, Angus Ross and Ormond Wilson – and of how Canterbury Museum came to acquire the largest collection of Chinese art in New Zealand. At the centre of the book is the eloquent diary kept by Canterbury Museum director Dr Roger Duff, detailing his efforts to bring to Christchurch the collection of antiquities gifted to the museum by long-time China resident, New Zealander Rewi Alley. Through Alley’s contacts with premier Zhou Enlai and Duff’s diplomatic skills they obtained the sanction of the Chinese government to circumvent its own export ban on antiquities and permit the gifting of seven crates of treasures to Christchurch. These objects were the basis for the museum’s Hall of Oriental Arts and their arrival led to a collections policy dedicated to Chinese art. New China Eyewitness offers a rare glimpse of foreigners' views of China during a period of rapid social, political and cultural change, and at a time of unusual political and cultural tolerance"--Back cover.

Summary "It's 2010, and pirate attacks around the Horn of Africa are at their height. The West has yet to start sending naval escorts to protect the ships and freighters that ply the sea lanes along this dangerous coast. The US President is worried, though. He wants to protect US shipping. A Presidential ‘Black’ Executive Order is released, and a small contingent of US Navy SEALs are placed on key US ships traversing the area with orders to repel attackers at all costs. The use of extreme force is authorised as a final option, but these missions must be kept secret. The public won't accept the blatant murder of pirates so only ships where the captain and crew sign a secrecy agreement will be protected. Newly promoted Navy SEAL Lieutenant John Deacon leads a small team of dedicated warriors determined to stop the pirates in their tracks, but the pirates soon learn of the defenders and up the stakes" -- Back cover.

Title: So many islands : stories from the Caribbean, Mediterranean, Indian and Pacific Oceans / edited by Nicholas Laughlin with Nailah Folami Imoja.

ISBN: 9781877484421

Physical Details: 214 pages ; 20 cm

Summary: "The seventeen writers assembled in this anthology belong to the Pacific and Indian Oceans, the Mediterranean and the Caribbean. Some of the islands they come from may look remote on a map, but there is nothing isolated about their stories and poems and essays. They may be writing from and about small places - some smaller than others - but their ideas and themes take their measure from the scale of world histories. Small island countries within the Commonwealth share a past of colonial exploitation. One legacy in the present is a body of common political and social concerns. Another legacy is English, a world language with manifold accents and a multitudinous vocabulary, a shared and diverse tongue that allows these island writers to speak to each other across oceans, and to speak to us. Their stories, their insights, their arguments, their jokes, their memories and their questions travel far on unceasing tides"--Foreword.

Max Novak, an aging widower, has totally withdrawn from society, moved to the North Carolina mountains and made himself a paradise entirely independent of the power grid. When a representative of the Nantahala Power Company is discovered marking a line right through the center of Max’s property with orange plastic tape to make way for a 375 kilowatt power line that will cross right through Max’s land, as well as through his immediate neighbor’s, a full blooded Cherokee Indian named, Chief Whitecloud, who lives with his daughter, Nicole, Max is forced to get involved with his tiny community of Lake Nantahala, in order to try, against all the odds, to stop the power company. With the law of eminent domain on their side, the power company becomes a formidable adversary. Through numerous flashbacks, we learn more about Max, his romantic encounters, his broken first marriage, his career as a film producer, and his lost true love, Sarah. Along the road to redemption for his many transgressions, other characters play significant roles in both Max’s past and present, where he is unwittingly reunited with a long lost relationship and an engaging story—Back cover.

When you come out of this, you're still drifting because you must find a different purpose, another reason to face the future you didn't ask for, could not plan for. Author Mead, Sidney M., author.

Physical Details xv, 282 pages : colour illustrations ; 29 cm

Summary "Mataatua wharenui is the most travelled Māori meeting house in the country. Built in 1875, it was taken to Australia, London and Otago before being returned to Whakatāne after more than a century away. The story of Mataatua is part of the story of the desecration of Ngāti Awa by the Crown and the fight of the people to regain their sovereignty. Following the confiscation of Ngāti Awa land in the 1860s and the devastation to the people of Ngāti Awa, building a wharenui was proposed as a way to reunite Ngāti Awa. The result was Mataatua, a magnificent wharenui, honoring the people, their history and whakapapa, and the skills of the craftspeople, and establishing a living marae. Shortly after it was opened, the government requested that Mataatua be an exhibit at the Sydney International Exhibition, and from here, it travelled across the globe until ending as an exhibit in Otago Museum. By this time, the government had claimed ownership of Mataatua, and it took more than fifty years of perseverance by Ngāti Awa to have Mataatua returned to Whakatāne to again become a living wharenui in the care of its people. In words and photographs, the book describes the history and construction of Mataatua, work undertaken by generations to have it returned, and the detail of its rebuild and opening in 2011"--Publisher information.

Language In Maori and English.

Summary "This book describes the iwi of Ngāti Kahu through the traditions and histories of each of the sixteen hapū, told by kuia and kaumātua and kept alive for future generations. These include histories of poverty, deprivation and marginalisation at the hands of the Crown, and loss of lands of the iwi. The book examines the range of techniques used by the Crown to justify its actions and the way these laid the groundwork for continuing injustices. The remedies needed to redress these injustices and achieve reconciliation of Ngāti Kahu and the Crown are set out. These include constitutional change to achieve the restoration of political, social and economic well-being to Ngāti Kahu, Crown relinquishment of all Ngāti Kahu lands to their rightful owners and payment of sufficient compensation to ensure no further Treaty of Waitangi claims. This history of Ngāti Kahu details the range of Crown actions against Ngāti Kahu to the current day, the effects of these actions on the people of Ngāti Kahu and the concerted and continuing efforts by Ngāti Kahu for remedies and reconciliation with the Crown"--Publisher information.

Summary For some 24 years in the 1500s map makers included Australia on their world maps - long before Australia was actually 'discovered' by Europeans, according to conventional history. This book presents evidence that the ancient Greeks landed in the Americas and circumnavigated the world more than 1300 years before the voyage of Magellan. This great expedition was recorded by the Greeks and the resultant maps and scrolls stored in the Great Library of Alexandria. There they remained until 340-345AD when Roman troops removed selected items and took them back to Italy. History sadly records that in 390AD the then Bishop of Alexandria ordered the library's entire contents, some 700,000 scrolls, maps and other artefacts, burnt or smashed. This research traces what really happened in those turbulent times and explains how some of these records were not destroyed but remained intact for map makers to rediscover more than one thousand years later. Importantly, it explores how the magnificent works of ancient master map maker Claudius Ptolemy were found and redrawn in the 1300s. Strangely, though the original ancient maps were found, it is clear that those who drew new maps from them did not fully understand the extent of what the ancient Greek voyagers had achieved.

| Summary        | "This book traces the history of the Wāhiao people, weaving oral and recorded history to illustrate their relationship with the thermal valley of Te Whakarewarewatanga-o-te-ope-taua-a-Wāhiao. Whakarewarewa is New Zealand's most famous thermal tourist resort and has been home to Ngāti Wāhiao for more than 300 years. The history of Ngāti Wāhiao is recorded in the names of hot pools, mud pools, geysers, fissures, and streams in the valley. The bones of Ngāti Wāhiao tupuna lie in caves in Te Puia and the surrounding Pohuturoa hills. This is a true David and Goliath saga. Wāhiao have a clear unbroken customary association with the land over hundreds of years. But other larger tribes also claim to have occupied Whakarewarewa at different times and have laid claim to the thermal valley. The stories describe the ancient and bloody wars fought, lost, and won by Wāhiao, and their more recent courtroom battles. From these encounters tribal heroes have emerged. It is their stories that are the focus of this book, from the war parties of the ancestor Wāhiao after whom the valley is named to the modern heroes who have fought for recognition" | of their mana whenua over their ancestral land. These heroes faced the forces of adversity over the last 120 years"--Page iii.

Summary "Set amidst the physical and psychological landscapes of New Zealand's southern hills and grasslands, Beneath Pale Water is a social realist and expressionistic novel that follows a triangle of three damaged individuals - a sculptor, a vagrant and a model - who have grown calcified shells against the world. Their search for identity and belonging leads them into dangerous territory that threatens both their sanity and lives. As their protective shells crack they are left vulnerable - both physically and emotionally - to the high country winds and their own conflicts that, ultimately, might free - or destroy them" -- Back cover.

Summary "There were those who liked to refer to the shopping area of Kelburn as 'the village'. It gave it status. Did they have in mind some impossible idyll of an English village of established families, in which people knew their place and weather was predictable? The reality of Kelburn in 1930s New Zealand could not have been more different. Like the plants around the steep hillsides, people, too, are struggling to become established. Some people in this story turn out to be not as they first seem. Public faces mask unhealed wounds. A chance event, a "sudden death", connects the characters in one way or another. The story that unfolds is the story of their changing fortunes, hopes, fears, loves and moods throughout the Spring of 1939. The looming war has little significance to some of them, others can hear the drums beating all too clearly. But no-one living in Wellington can ignore the weather. They are all affected by its fickleness, its days of violence and its days of blessed calm"--Back cover.

Summary  "The Titirangi Poets was founded in 1977 by Ron Riddell. Initially known as the Titirangi Poetry and Jazz Group, it provided a venue for poets and musicians in search of an audience for original works. An open forum was created, providing a testing ground for new poems and pieces of music through constructive feedback and encouragement. From the late 1970's until the early 2000's group events were co-ordinated by Mari Hunt. During this period the group became known as The Titirangi Poets. Piers Davies was also a prominent figure during the period, providing long-term leadership and continuity. There are fifty-one poets represented in this exciting retrospective anthology, including many well-known New Zealand poets such as Kevin Ireland, Peter Bland, Bob Orr, Janet Charman and Riemke Ensing, as well as new and up-and-coming voices such as those of Caroline Masters and Aaron Cromwell. From the green slopes of Titirangi, after forty years of meetings, workshops, readings and events, comes this unique new book, with something for every poetic taste"--Back cover.

But Gabriel’s Bay has its own problems – low employment, no tourists, and a daunting hill road between it and civilisation. And Kerry must also run the gauntlet of its inhabitants: Sidney, single mother deserted by a feckless ex; Mac, the straight-shooting doctor’s receptionist; a team of unruly nine-year-olds; a giant restaurateur; and the local progressive association, who’ll debate apostrophe placement until the crack of doom. Summary: "Arthur Drams works for a secret government security agency, but all he really does is spend his days in a cubical writing reports no one reads. After getting another “lateral promotion” by a supervisor who barely remembers his name, it’s suggested that Arthur try to ‘make friends’ and ‘get noticed’ in order to move up the ladder. It's like high school all over again: his attempts to be friendly come across as awkward and creepy, and no one wants to sit at the same table with him at lunch. In a last-ditch attempt to be seen as friendly and outgoing, he decides to make friends with The Alien, aka Agent Martin Grove, known for his strange eating habits, unusual reading choices, and the fact that no one has spoken to him in three years. Starting with a short, surprisingly interesting conversation on sociology books, Arthur slowly begins to chip away at The Alien's walls using home-cooked meals to lure the secretive agent out of his abrasive shell. Except Martin just might be something closer to an actual secret agent than paper-pusher Arthur is, and it might be more than hearts at risk when something more than friendship begins to develop"--Back cover.

They are also mostly kiwi-inspired as well as a beautifully abstract way of saying 'I love you' for kids. ...This book is also an educational tool to teach kids about art. Each page has an element of colour abstraction or an abstraction or simplification of form on it to encourage kids to think differently about visual representation ... also offers an insight into computational thinking and computer science. Summary "Newly-weds in Tangier experience the bitter sweetness of new encounters in this evocative short story. As with the contrasting flavours of the 'garnet-coloured beads, packed in pith and membrane', Emily and Ari savour the surprises of the alleyways and locals. But can they trust the man who offers to be their guide? Can they believe his claims that he has a kebab stand near to where they come from? And what of his prediction that they will soon have a beautiful baby boy?"

Summary: "This is a story of music and passion, love and loss, defeat and victory. But his birth was not legendary. Abandoned on the cold steps of a Houndside orphanage, this small unhoundish pup grew up knowing nothing of his mother and father and everything about loneliness and sorrow. His was a hard-scrabble life on the working-class side of town, where motorbike gangs mingled with milkmen and everything was faded, including dreams. Yet it was here that Lonely first heard the blues, gritty barb-wire blues, leaking from clubs and honkytonk bars. And it was this music that became his lifeline and his destiny. Yet it came at a price. Bullied and misunderstood, Lonely was hounded from town and became a refugee in his own country. Rejected, hunted, he knew both prison bars and freedom's kiss. Some called him a troubadour, others a troublemaker"--Inside cover.

Publishing Details Aotearoa New Zealand : Lawrence & Gibson, [2017]
Physical Details 252 pages ; 21 cm
Summary "A freelance farming journalist travels south with the Press Gallery on a behind-the-scenes tour of New Zealand's reconstructed South Island. A new inmate inside Christchurch Men's dairying prison wails a tale of blood and milk to the interactive avatar of comedian Billy T James. A private agri-prison operator juggles two escapees and a political hit, with far too much of her money and pride riding on a prison fight. A rogue Twitter account wanders the wilderness of Milk Island, reporting on environmental collapse under accusations of domestic terrorism. As the 2023 New Zealand election approaches, four cruel and unusual stories expose the inner workings at the heart of Milk Island (former South Island) where a fifth-term Government's legacy project is going very well or very poorly, depending on who you ask. On Milk Island, patriotism and prosperity trumps all else and life matters very little unless you're Milky Moo, the nation's favourite cow. Milk Island is the absurd and unhelpful first novel by Wellington-based writer Rhydian Thomas. It is 100% pure fiction"--Back cover.

Summary  "Uneasy nights out with dead Russian poets, dalliances with German gas fitters and emotionally fraught games of badminton are brought together for the first time, along with a brand new body of work, in this time-spanning selection of Anna Jackson's poetry. Local Gothic, suburban pastoral and answerings-back to literary icons are all enhanced by Jackson's light hand and sly humour. Pastoral yet gritty, intellectual and witty, sweet but with stings in their tails, the poems and sequences collected in Pasture and Flock are essential reading for both long term and new admirers of Jackson's slanted approach to lyric poetry"--Back cover.

Title  The New Ships / Kate Duignan.
Author  Duignan, Kate, 1974- author
ISBN  9781776561889
Projected Publication Date  1805
Physical Details  pages cm
Summary  ""I think it's fair to say I was rewarded, praised, applauded, more than most fathers." Peter Collie is adrift in the wake of his wife's death. His attempts to understand the turn his life has taken lead him back to the past, to dismaying events on an Amsterdam houseboat in the seventies, returning to New Zealand and meeting Moira, an amateur painter who carried secrets of her own, and to a trip to Europe years later with his family. An unexpected revelation forces Peter to navigate anew his roles as a husband, father and son. Set in Wellington after the fall of the Twin Towers, and traversing London, Europe, the Indian subcontinent, The New Ships is a mesmerising book of blood-ties that stretch across borders. A novel of acute moral choices, it is a rich and compelling meditation on what it means to act, or to fail to act."--Publisher information.

who starts out sickly and very vulnerable. Through a chance meeting with a spiritual guru, Azzam's life starts to change for the better. As the story unfolds, Azzam grows stronger and was all meant to be and Azzam's place in this world was decided long before he knew anything about it. He falls in love with a princess from his school, but both families are against Summary  "At the front of a little hotel in a country town, a flickering sign says, 'ALL WELCOME'. There's a chandelier in the lobby, a polished wooden staircase, and a broken swing under a tree in the backyard. Fleeing a catastrophe they cannot describe, two strangers in ill-fitting clothes stagger into town, where they are offered a room by the hotelier--and a wary hospitality. No one knows where they've come from or who they are, including the young man assigned to watch them and make a note of everything they do. The Cage is a profound and unsettling fable about trust and fear, cruelty and compassion, dignity and hope--and about what it means to bear witness"--Back cover.

Summary  "Dearest friend, Tomorrow I fly to New Zealand, a country where my future master will no doubt teach me the deepest secrets of brewing the most marvelous, miraculous and magical potions. Perhaps he will teach me how to make an invisibility potion? No, no. Too mundane. I'm sure he'll teach me the sort of magic that paints the Milky-Way with the stars, the kind that swaps the sky with the still ocean, or the ones that make fireflies dance in winter. Okay, all of those are illegal, but a girl can dream, right? Ma, of course, thinks I'm going to get kidnapped by some moustache-twirling villain and become embroiled in a magical struggle that's been brewing for centuries. If I had a say, I'd add a dash of danger and adventure in there. Why stop at getting kidnapped? Why not rebirth an ancient magic everyone thought was extinct? What would I do if I find myself in a series of such non-sensical events? Who knows? But I promise you I wouldn't give up without a proper, magical fight. Your Fantabulous Friend"--Back cover.

Summary  "I know this sounds crazy but there was blue light coming out of his hands and I could feel all my pain flowing out of me... When Dean Bradley is brutally murdered for his new shoes, undertaker Ken Tamati does a lovely job on the corpse - but next morning, the body has vanished from the funeral parlour. That day, a mysterious figure - witness give wildly conflicting descriptions - begins rescuing victims of assault all over Auckland and healing their horrific injuries with a dazzling light. They call him the Rainbow Man. Who is he? The police and media think the stories of apparent miracles can't possibly be true. The public thinks this may be the Second Coming. Meanwhile a brutal serial killer is about to strike again, young Tom Heke is on the run from both the police and a fearsome Maori gang, and Constable Mary Clark puzzles her colleagues by knowing more about the Rainbow Man than she should. Gary Moore's debut novel is a fast-paced thriller with cracking dialogue, sly humour and, underlying it all, a serious ecological message."--Provided by publisher.

Summary  "In the aftermath of the invasion of Parihaka in November 1881, Inspector Patrick O'Rorke is appointed by the government to investigate allegations of police brutality laid by the influential Maori politician Hoani Te Pae. Before he leaves Christchurch for Wellington to begin, O'Rorke is called to the house of the well-to-do Albert Howard, following the seemingly routine theft of a valuable item from his collection. Undeterred by the hostility and obstruction of the Wellington police to his Parihaka investigation, and the fact that he finds himself increasingly becoming a pawn in a battle between two warring political factions, O'Rorke is determined to get to the bottom of the incident. And when Albert Howard is murdered, he uncovers a chilling link between the two enquiries. Edmund Bohan’s Inspector O’Rorke novel is set, like the others, in a vividly re-created colonial New Zealand. A skillfully woven blend of fact and fiction, it takes its protagonist from an elegant Thorndon mansion to the fetid slums of Ghuznee Street, from a downtown bordello to the houses of Parliament in a compellingly told tale of political and personal intrigue"--Back cover.

Summary
When a devastating earthquake hits Evie's hometown of Parnassus on New Zealand's South Island, she and the rest of the town are forced to evacuate. Evie's injured mum is one of the first to be rescued by helicopter and Evie will be next. But when realises that she will be forced to leave her beloved pony, Gus, her dog, Jock, and her cat Moxy behind, she is determined to find another way. Before the rescue helicopter returns, Evie flees with Gus, Jock and Moxy in a race against time across difficult terrain to reach the port of Kaikoura, where she has heard that people will be evacuated by ship in three days' time. Surely there will be space for her, Gus, Jock and Moxy there? But the journey is harder than Evie could ever have imagined, and with aftershocks constantly shaking, Evie will have to draw on all her bravery, strength, and resilience to bring her and her animals to safety . . . and hope that they reach the boat in time.

Summary: "Janine's mother had an obsession: her ancestry. But what she uncovered was a colourful assortment of characters and their penchant for cruelty and abuse. When her mother dies, Janine continues the genealogical search. She buys a run-down house on a tiny island, where she sits and writes up the stories of her forebears, worrying whether the damaging genes have been passed on. Meanwhile the builder, Jake, is erecting a jetty for her, and it is his presence, along with Janine's discovery about her grandfather, that might offer her hope of redemption."

Summary  "A look at eye surgery in New Zealand and its many, often colourful, practitioners. This book throws new light on eye surgery from our colonial days to the present. Some early surgeons were itinerants who operated in hotel rooms and advertised like snake-oil salesmen. In contrast, others were at the top of the specialty and were huge contributors to medical education in New Zealand and Australia. Since the 1990s there has been a remarkable ascent of academic ophthalmology, resulting in New Zealand ophthalmologists and ophthalmic researchers becoming recognised internationally. It is a specialty which is serving New Zealanders superbly"--Publisher information.

Summary  "Robby and Garry Robilliard arrived in Golden Bay in 1957 as a young married couple with a baby. They longed to own their own sheep farm, but a lack of money stood in their way. Then they found Rocklands, a rundown marginal property in the hills above Takaka. Its three previous owners had gone bust; no wonder Robby came to call it 'nightmare land'. Sixty years on, Robby and Garry still call Rocklands home."

Summary: "After a short stint in prison on trumped-up charges, the loveable simpleton Donny Mac returns to the house left to him by his grandfather in the small settlement of Manawa, in the shadow of Mt Ruapehu. Now inhabited by a handful of colourful locals, the once prosperous milling town is only bustling in the ski season when the out-of-towners arrive. Awaiting Donny's return is the drunken and pregnant Nightshade, who claims he is the father. Donny's friends keep watch anxiously. Among them is the Virgin Tracey, a sixteen-year-old hiding out in one of the abandoned houses, with her own tiny baby. When an accident threatens to put Donny back into prison, he and the Virgin Tracey come up with a solution to cover it up. But can the secret remain hidden?"

Title In search of consensus New Zealand's Electoral Act 1956 and its constitutional legacy / Elizabeth McLeay
Author McLeay, E. M. (Elizabeth M.) author
ISBN 9781776561841
Projected Publication Date 1803
Physical Details pages cm
Summary "In a series of backroom negotiations in 1956, the National Government and Labour Opposition agreed to put aside adversarial politics temporarily and entrench certain significant electoral rules. For any of these rules to be amended or repealed, Section 189 of the Electoral Act (now Section 268 of the 1993 Act) requires the approval of either three-quarters of all MPs or a majority of electors voting in a referendum. The MPs believed this entrenchment put in place a 'moral' constraint to guide future parliaments – but its status has changed over time. In Search of Consensus tells the story of why and how such a remarkable political settlement happened. It traces and analyses the Act's protected provisions, subsequent fortunes and enduring legacy. As such, it is an important contribution to understanding the contemporary constitution and political culture of Aotearoa New Zealand"-- Publisher information.

Summary: "Inspirational blogger Makaia Carr left school at 16 and was pregnant with her first child a year later. In her own words, she was a 'Maori teen mum from the 'Naki' who others expected to end up on the DPB. Instead she worked her way up through the fashion industry, launched her own online fitness community and clothing brand, and is now in demand as a motivational speaker and social media influencer. She has overcome depression and what she now recognises was an unhealthy relationship with her body, to promote a message of self-love and empowerment. In Keeping it Real, Makaia openly shares her struggles and the strategies that help her to maintain a positive body image and outlook. Her story is a reminder that physical and emotional well-being starts with self-acceptance. As she says, "self-loathing is imprisonment; self-love is liberation"--Publisher information.

Summary: "This bonkers collection of short stories explores all the mix-ups and madness that might occur if mind-swapping was possible. One boy is zapped by an electric fly swat and finds himself buzzing around in the body of fly. Another is trapped in a toad's body and can only escape if he convinces someone to kiss him. The stories also include hopeful immortals, horses that know Morse code, aliens who try to hijack children's bodies and unfortunately timed sneezes"--Provided by publisher.

Summary "For almost a decade, the idea of social investment has been a major focus of New Zealand policy-making and policy debate. The broad aim has been to address serious social problems and improve long-term fiscal outcomes by drawing on big data and deploying various analytical techniques to enable more evidence-informed policy interventions. But recent approaches to social investment have been controversial. In late 2017, the new Labour-New Zealand First government announced a review of the previous government's policies. As ideas about social investment evolve, this book brings together leading academics, commentators and policy analysts from the public and private sectors to answer three big questions: How should social investment be defined and conceptualized? How should it be put into practice? In what policy domains can it be most productively applied? As governments in New Zealand and abroad continue to explore how best to tackle major social problems, this book is essential for people seeking to understand social policy in the twenty-first century"--Back cover.

Summary  "Rose Ann Dixon’s family life in Otara seems unremarkable. Her home, which she shares with her father, mother, and five younger sisters and brothers, along with the family cat – called Hoodat – looks no different from those around it. But, her close friend and neighbours know otherwise. Each day, Rose faces problems that no one should ever have to deal with but deep love for her siblings sees her carry out quiet deeds of heroism in the face of increasing anger and violence meted out by her father. A gift from her thoughtful teacher on her thirteenth birthday, is a turning point in Rose’s life. After hearing Martin Luther King’s inspiring words, she realises that every child can have dreams and what’s more they have a right to expect them to come true. Discovering a family secret gives her newfound strength to confront her distant and ineffective mother about a past event that left lifelong scars which she now sees very differently. In order to save her siblings, Rose realises she must first abandon them, and begins a journey from Otara to Wellington and finally India"--Publisher's website.

Summary "In the 1880s, Mere yearns for independence. Iraia wants the same but, as the descendant of a slave, such things are hardly conceivable. One summer, they notice their friendship has changed, but if they are ever to experience freedom they will need to leave their home in the Queen Charlotte Sounds. A hundred years later, Lula and Bigs are born. The birth is literally one in a million, as their mother, Tui, likes to say. When Tui dies, they learn there is much she kept secret and they, too, will need to travel beyond their world, to an island they barely knew existed. Neither Mere and Iraia nor Lula and Bigs are aware that someone else is part of their journeys. He does not watch over them so much as through them, feeling their loss and confusion as if it were his own."

Title: White lies / Dana Rotberg, screenplay and director ; Witi Ihimaera, original novella.

Author: Ihimaera, Witi, 1944- author.

ISBN: 9781775533078 internet

Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Contents: White lies : the novella / Witi Ihimaera -- White lies : the photographic essay / Todd Eyre -- White lies : the screenplay / Dana Rotberg -- White lies : notes and original novella / Witi Ihimaera -- White lies : cast and crew list.

Summary: "Dana's script and the film were based on Witi's original novella Medicine woman. But just as a film script is a living, breathing entity, so a novel can also change and adapt, and Witi has rewritten the story in his own way, adding scenes, expanding the background and putting in elements in readiness for the sequel he plans to write one day. So, while the original novella in reproduced at the end of this book, what we are showcasing here is how a story can take on new lives, and evolve in different media, with alternative endings and emphases. This book is a celebration of Witi and Dana, and of that creative process"--Introduction.

Summary: "Bursting with verbal dexterity and laugh-out-loud humour, this novel also shows compassion and warm affection for the West Coast landscape and people. Simon Fyfe, better known as Feefi, short for Fee Fi Fo Fum, is Special. He's a giant of a man (he stayed in his mother's womb for an extra month) and, most of his Westport friends would agree, he's not the full quid. But he often has thoughts the others in the Mine and at the pub call 'deep', and his knowledge of nature is unmatched. From his mother he learned the art of making jam from the fruit of the protected nikau palm, and when the conservationists from Over the Hill hit town, the trouble begins. But, out of the glorious legal and emotional tangle that results, Feefi emerges triumphant, and in love for the first time in his life."

<td>&quot;This short story is told by a young American girl, who is all too knowing about her own world, but ignorant about the Kiwi strangers she meets. When Ruthie's father needs a drink, he takes his young daughter with him. She sits in the bar, with her pink panther, watching the drinkers and fending off unwanted approaches. One day there are strangers at the bar, with an unusual accent, saying they are from 'Nyu Zillun'. They give Ruthie a 'little green monster' they call a 'tuckie' and ask her about herself.&quot;</td>

Summary  "When Lisa Harper returned to her family's farm at Waterfall Bay, at the head of remote Mahau Sound, after years overseas working as a scientist, she showed all the pluck and entrepreneurial streak of the earlier generations of women in her family. The isolation wasn't going to deter her from starting a new business. After all, her grandmother and mother were made of stern stuff, coping with running stock, keeping an orchard, making cheese, operating a guest house, home-schooling children and only getting to 'town' every six weeks. Eight years later Lisa was an award winning traditional cheesemaker and a Nuffield fellowship winner when she had to make a major decision to wrench the family from Waterfall Bay to secure its future"--Publisher information.
