The New Zealand National Bibliography (NZNB) contains catalogue records for the New Zealand imprint. It is produced monthly (12 issues per year). The National Library of New Zealand has responsibility for producing the Bibliography. Most of the material listed is received by the National Library of New Zealand under the Legal Deposit provisions of the National Library Act 1965, Section 30A, amended 1994. It includes New Zealand and Tokelau books, serials, newspapers, music, maps, videos, sound recordings, kits, and pictures. Items are included after they have been received at the National Library. The catalogue records produced meet international standards.

This document contains all the items that have been catalogued during the month of May 2018. The items are grouped under the main subject schedules of the Dewey Decimal Classification system. Within each subject grouping the items are arranged alphabetically by title.

<td>&quot;When Merv's wife, Bella, dies suddenly and unexpectedly, grief plunges him into depths of love and realms of spiritual experience unknown to him before. As a skeptical psychologist, he fears this may just be a comforting delusion and struggles to make sense of it. Finally he concedes that the heart has its own way of knowing, and that a broken heart may be the doorway to a timeless dimension that transcends all separation - even death.&quot;--Publisher information.</td>

Physical Details  239 pages : colour illustrations ; 23 cm
         later. In her own words, she was a 'Māori teen mum from the 'Naki' who others expected to end up on the DPB'. Instead she worked her way up through the fashion industry, launched her own online fitness community and clothing brand, and is now in demand as a motivational speaker and social media influencer. She has overcome depression and what she now recognises was an unhealthy relationship with her body, to promote a message of self-love and empowerment. In Keeping it Real, Makaia openly shares her struggles and the strategies that help her to maintain a positive body image and outlook. Her story is a reminder that physical and emotional well-being starts with self-acceptance. As she says, "self-loathing is imprisonment; self-love is liberation"--Back cover.

Physical Details  xiv 96 pages ; 22 cm

Summary  "Imagine a dove with no feathers on its wings, and gradually as you read through this book, the feathers begin to grow, and when you reach the last page you see a white dove in full flight. The perfectly formed dove is surrounded by a pure, golden glow of love and light energy, radiating with peace and compassion for all life. This is the story of my life and my truth, and how I came to understand unconditional love and learn not to reactively judge from my mind, but to live with an open heart. I share my experience of learning about and understanding how physical life works in my body from an energy perspective, and how I was restored through the spiritual and sexual healing energy of love. I was raised as a farm girl in New Zealand, growing up dealing with the tough stuff and the good stuff. I share my insights about awareness and consciousness and that which is authentic and true in life. I tell of my transformation from the dark into the light - living with health and happiness and not with disease and sadness - and living, loving and experiencing life to the fullest"--Back cover.

Summary: "Ian Harris’s ‘Faith and Reason’ columns - which have featured in the Otago Daily Times for fifteen years, and in The Dominion Post and Touchstone as ‘Honest to God’ - argue that Christianity in this millennium is not the paradox it appears to be but religion at its most creative. Journalist Harris began his columns in 2001. They explore Christianity in a post-911 framework and discuss concepts of faith in order to make sense of them for secular people in a secular age. In this selection, Ian Harris writes in response to current events and visual media, cinematic retellings such as The Passion of the Christ, and the ideas of people like Stephen Hawking, Lloyd Geering and Philip Pullman. He portrays faith as a creative, evolving and essential part of life, not an outdated and immovable concept etched in stone."--Back cover.

Physical Details xi, i, 204 pages ; 20 cm

Summary "At 27 years old, just as it seemed most of her friends were settling down and starting their families, Megan Smith convinced her husband, Mark, that they should quit their jobs and go travelling instead. Following the devastating death of her father two years earlier, Megan had found it increasingly difficult to live with the overwhelming feelings of loss. Her newfound understanding of just how short life can be spurred her into action. A determination to “get busy living” saw Megan leave her dream job at Google and farewell her Antipodean home to pursue long-held travel aspirations in the Northern Hemisphere. From riding a train across Russia to walking across Spain and sharing countless drinks with locals all over Europe, this candid debut book tells the story of how one girl found her way back from heartbreak. Lost Heart Found shines a much-needed spotlight on the different manifestations of grief and shares one person’s journey out from under its dark cloud"--Back cover.

The big questions: what is New Zealand's future?

ISBN 9780143772378 paperback

Summary
"New Zealand is at a crossroads. People are increasingly concerned about where we are headed. Can we improve our appalling statistics on poverty and violence? What about work - will we all be replaced by robots? Will our children (let alone our grandchildren) be able to afford to buy a house? Can we clean up our rivers? This book looks at many aspects of our lives and our nation. Experts in their fields write about the challenges that face us and the opportunities we have to make changes for the better" -- Publisher information.

The purpose of this standard is to provide guidance on reducing people's risks of exposure to harm caused by the presence of unacceptable levels of methamphetamine contamination in properties, including vehicles and caravans. It establishes decontamination levels to guide the decontamination of affected properties. It also sets out procedures for testing properties for contamination and the steps needed to decontaminate properties and dispose of any contaminated waste. Reference to this standard may be helpful in situations such as change of ownership or tenancy of properties, particularly properties where contamination by methamphetamine is known or suspected. The standard addresses all sources of methamphetamine contamination, and aims to ensure consistency, reliability, and competency in activities including screening, sampling, testing, and, where necessary, decontaminating properties and disposing of contaminated materials. Any hazards from other contaminants resulting from processes used for producing methamphetamine on a property should be assessed separately, and any treatment of those hazards should be based on contaminant-specific guidelines.

Summary Moana Hope is one of fourteen children. No fan of dolls or dresses, footy has always been her passion, and she would spend hours playing kick-to-kick with her dad and brothers at the local park. When her father was diagnosed with terminal cancer, Moana cared for him until his death four years later. Footy and cricket provided an escape from the demands of domestic life, and she made state and national teams for both sports. She also began to explore her Maori heritage, getting tattoos that represented the dearest people in her life. But as women's football became more popular, being good at the game wasn't enough—players started being pressured about the way they looked. Moana refused to grow her hair or cover her tatts, and for the first time in her life felt sidelined by the game. But later, inspired by a women's exhibition game, she realised what she was missing and returned with gusto to the game she loved. As a powerful full-forward who can thrill crowds by taking big marks and kicking spectacular goals, Moana was signed by Collingwood as one of its two marquee players for the inaugural AFL Women's competition in 2017. A high-flying athlete who is grounded by remarkable selflessness, Moana Hope is an inspiration for women and girls everywhere. My Way is her story.

"The sudden death of John Clarke in April 2017 cut short the life of a man who was not only a great and much loved entertainer and satirist but a wonderful writer. Tinkering- The Complete Book of John Clarke represents his work from the 1970s in both Australia and New Zealand, and includes his writing for radio, television, stage and screen, as well some previously unpublished pieces. This collection includes the irresistible commentaries of Fred Dagg, the hilarious and unforgettable absurdities of farnarkeling and selections of his famous quizzes, where he gave the answers and readers had to guess the questions. There are also moving recollections of people and places, many of which he wrote towards the end of his life. Introduced by Lorin Clarke Tinkering is the perfect way to remember the genius who made us all laugh at ourselves and our society for so many years."--Publisher's description.

Summary Matthew Fenchurch, patriarch and landowner of the northern NSW property Jarulan, lives in a grand decaying folly, invaded by ghosts and the local fauna. His wife is dead, one son has fallen on a battlefield in France, and another lives in exile as a remittance man on a marae in New Zealand. His only company are the farmhands, an old family servant and a part-time laundry maid with dreams above her station. When Matthew builds a memorial above the river for his brave lost son - and all the boys of the district who have died fighting for King and Country - his daughters and grandchildren return for the unveiling. They bring with them someone who will change life at Jarulan forever, who will fight the ghosts of the past and the claimants of the present, and ensure a dynasty, though not as anyone expected.

Summary From the tropical Northland of New Zealand, Robbie Tuawai had always dreamt of one day farming in the fertile domains, of Hawkes Bay or the Wairarapa. He wanted to experience the vast stations of these regions, and experience the difference in farming techniques they offered. As he sat listening to the continuing disagreement between his parents, he wished he was far away from their problems. Robbie was soon to realise his dream, and his life would set out on a path, which would offer him huge opportunity to grow and become a front runner in his field. Robbie's grandparents had land in Northland, and this land would call to Robbie and eventually play a major part in his long term future. As a proud Ngā Puhi Māori by berth, Robbie would show the world how much he treasured his peoples land and how capable he would be in the future, in farming it.

Summary  "What if all your dreams—the good ones and the nightmares—came to life in the real world? Heaven is a Dream Weaver, and that is her reality. When she wakes up, she never knows what will greet her or her best friend and roommate, Syl. It could be a sexy stripper or a monster from another dimension. When Syl suggests a Dream Catcher to help her control the dreams, Heaven is wary until she meets the alluring Maya. Heaven knows the government-run Dream Center hasn’t given up on harnessing her powerful abilities for their own nefarious purposes. She also knows that Maya could be her only hope. Maya introduces Heaven to her sister, Leah, and Heaven soon learns that Leah has her own agenda related to the Dream Center, and she’ll do anything to see it through. Between the government, the powerful Dream Catching sisters, and her own nightmares, time is running out for Heaven. She wonders who she can trust. Are her growing feelings for Maya real, or just another dream? Can this lovely Dream Catcher protect her or is Heaven truly on her own?"

"Passed down through the same family for over a century, the remote sheep and cattle station of Broken Creek has recently been taken over by global agribusiness company, Carnarvon Holdings. Now Carnarvon has sent its best troubleshooting manager, Tess Drummond, to turn the property's failing fortunes around - fast. When Tess arrives to take the reins of Broken Creek she's faced with a couple of nasty surprises. For starters, her head stockman, Nate McAdam, happens to be the same gorgeous stranger she hooked up with and ran out on a few weeks before. As if that wasn't bad enough, Nate was supposed to inherit Broken Creek until his stepfather ran it into the ground. Now the last McAdam on the station leads a team of men whose bonds have been forged through hell and high water and whose mission is to see off Carnarvon and Tess so he can take his rightful place. A genius with farmwork - and women - but a disaster in the office, Nate is everything Tess believes a farmer shouldn't be. Determined not to give in to her growing attraction to him, Tess sets out to do her job, but she soon finds herself caught up in the battle of her career"--Back cover.

Physical Details  335 pages : illustrations (some colour) ; 24 cm
Summary  "The Great South Road was built in 1862 to carry a British army into the Waikato Kingdom. When the British invaded the Waikato in 1863, soldiers shared the road with Māori refugees from Auckland. Today the eroding earthen walls of forts and pā and military cemeteries remember the road's history. They sit beside the car dealerships and kava bars and pawn shops of South Auckland, the most culturally diverse part of the world's most culturally diverse city. On their journeys up and down the Great South Road, Hamilton, Janman, and Powell have learned how the route's tragic past affects its present, and discovered the ways in which the road connects as well as divides the communities that live alongside it. Ghost South Road features obscure as well as famous figures from New Zealand history and illustrates the epic walk that the author and photographers made along the two hundred kilometre length of the Great South Road"--Back cover.

Summary  The continuing myth that Canterbury was born in December 1850 with the arrival of the First Four Ships has to be dispelled. Canterbury did not, like the legendary Athena, spring 'fully-armed from the head of Zeus' (in this case, John Robert Godley) as succeeding generations after 1851 have been led to believe. So much of the initial work was carried out by the Canterbury Association Chief Surveyor Captain Thomas; so much of this effort, intentionally or unintentionally, was obscured by the settlers of the 1850s, Thomas deserves recognition as a Canterbury founder.

Summary  "From snow to surf, the Waikato is New Zealand's longest river. This ... account takes a historical journey along its 425 kilometre length, uncovering reports of the people, places and events along its route. Starting from a desolate, icy volcanic plateau, historian Paul Moon traces the Waikato's path through dense native forest, undulating pastureland, dams, several towns, a city, and a swampy delta, until it exits into the Tasman Sea at Port Waikato. Along the way he uncovers settlements that have disappeared, sites scarred by wars, some of the world's most convulsive geological events, great tragedies, and the ... stories that have taken place along the river"--Back cover.

<td>Summary</td>
<td>&quot;Escaping England after the tragic loss of her husband and daughter, Emma finds herself on the doorstep of an isolated cottage in rural New Zealand. At a nearby lake, her healing begins in the pages of a journal she starts to write. This novel is that journal. Having abandoned all faith, she finds refuge and healing in the lake depths, but realises the young Maori man on neighbouring land is watching her. At first they share an unspoken bond as Emma bathes and then Emma must face the ultimate challenge: to allow love back into her broken heart. Alone with Emma is an intimate account of personal recovery from tragedy, with an ultimately uplifting message of courage and hope. Tanya Hetherington lives in Auckland, New Zealand with her daughter Brooke. Writing has been a lifelong passion, which finds fulfilment in this, her first novel. Tanya's other passions include horses, beach walks, yoga and reading. She currently works for North Auckland Harley-Davidson, which combines her love of motorcycles and of seeing people realise their dreams&quot;--Back cover.</td>

Physical Details  162 pages ; 23 cm.
Summary  "It is now 2035 and Gen and Nate MacGregor's family have overcome the traumatic upheaval in their lives since the oil ran out. Five years on and they are finally looking forward to some 'quiet' years together. The rest of the world though, is not surviving these times quite so well as the MacGregors. Thousands have died from starvation. Wars have broken out in many countries over dwindling resources. Cities have crumbled as the world's leaders and infrastructure has failed, leaving survivors to deal with life in whatever way they can. Many who have made it this far, have done so with cunning and ruthlessness. The cruel twist of fate's knife is felt once again when newcomers to Arrow Valley betray their generosity and Gen finds herself in danger, again, of losing everything she loves. Will the strong head of this family once again show true-grit in the face of death? Battles of the mind and heart cannot be waged with swords. Avenge My Chief is the exciting new sequel to Barbed Wire and Daisies"--Back cover.

Summary: "The problem with success is that people always expect more from you, thought Amanda. She stared hard at the folded piece of paper sitting on the desk in front of her, hoping it would just go away. Why did I say yes? She wondered. I must have been crazy! We do a couple projects, and now they want me to do this? With agonizing slowness, Amanda opened up the paper to once again read those terrible words, the words that she had committed to. The thing she had promised to do. Yes, no problem, Ms. Moldiva. Sure! It'll be fun! In large, bold letters at the top of the crinkled sheet of paper were the words: Wanted: Organizer for Valentine’s Day School Dance Amanda’s shuddered. It’s going to be a disaster! Summary "Between Two Worlds is the second in a trilogy about orphanage boys Samuel and Jimmy. The two men are swept up in the turmoil of World War One as they enlist in the New Zealand army and are sent overseas to fight. The toll on their families and the plight of those left behind is a stark reminder that war affects those at home as much as those who defend their country on foreign soil. There are casualties in both places"--Amazon.com

Title  Citizen of Santiago / [photographs by] Bruce Foster, [poems by] Gregory O'Brien.

Author  Foster, Bruce, 1948- artist.

ISBN  0473260530 paperback

Publishing Details  Wellington, New Zealand : Trapeze, 2013.

Physical Details  39 pages : colour illustrations ; 21 cm

Contents  Sombrereria -- In Parque Forestal, remembering a Chilean naval vessel in Auckland Harbour, mid-1980s -- Childhood of Christ in Santiago -- Great age of machines -- Origin of the Valdes Chair -- Citizen of Santiago de Chile.

Summary  Between March and May 2013, photographer Bruce Foster and poet Gregory O'Brein were temporary citizens of Santiago de Chile, staying in an apartment a short walk from the Museo de Arte Contemporaneo, where their works were included in the 'Kermadec - Art Across the Pacific' exhibition. Camera in hand, Foster walked the streets of this ambiguous yet curiously animated city, with its buskers, military parades, stray dogs and cascades of water from the cannons of armoured vehicles; O'Brein wrote poems, seated at Cafe Sur or the Mosqueto (with its Fernando Pessoa placemats), or on a bench in the Parque Forestal. Together they observed the life of street, park, and busy intersection; they were drawn into the generous, abundant lives of their fellow citizens.

Summary  "France, 1944. Sometimes the most desperate struggles take place far from the battlefield, and what happens in secret can change the course of history. Victory is close at hand, but freedom remains frustratingly just beyond the grasp of German physicist Dr. Kristopher Lehrer, Resistance fighter Michel, and the remaining members of the team sent by the Allies—Captain Matt Bryant, Sergeant Ken Lowe, and Dr. Zhou Liang—as they fight to keep the atomic plans from the Nazis. The team reaches France and connects with members of Michel's French Resistance cell in Normandy. Allied troops are poised to liberate France, and rescue is supposedly at hand. However, Kristopher is no longer sure the information he carries in his memory is safe with either side. When Standartenführer Holm and his men finally catch up with their prey, the team is left with few options. With a traitor in their midst, who can they trust? Kristopher realizes he must become something he is not in order to save the man he loves. Death is biding his time, and sacrifices must be made for any of them to have the futures they want"--Back cover.

Summary  "1983. Post-colonial Africa is a place that attracts men with an eye for the main chance. A cargo jet secretly departs a bush airstrip carrying the bullion reserves of an African Republic; the company's chairman promises the crew a generous gratuity, and a crewmember's family held hostage by corrupt army officers has been released. What can possibly go wrong ... except a massacre? Four men with disparate motives attempt to save a struggling airfreight company from collapse. Against a backdrop of turbulent politics, sanction busting and armed rebellion, action speeds between Africa, Europe and the Middle East as driven men pursue their goals - and pay the price. Fasten your seatbelt; Critical Point takes you into the cockpits of those anonymous jet freighters airline passengers seldom notice at airports - and into the hidden lives of the men who fly them"--Back cover.

<td>&quot;Legend says if you consume the heart of a mermaid, you will know all the secrets of men. Ailin doesn't care if the legend is true or not - she's stuck in a crate on her way to feature as the main course at a lavish banquet. Her heart to be served while still beating for a cruel noble while the rest of her is sliced into sashimi. Unless she can escape. Across the ocean, Fenton longs for a different release. Sold as a child by men who labelled him a mistake, a failed experiment. Except he has one valuable skill, he can summon the dreaded kraken. Bought by a pirate, he has only known life at sea, wielded as a tool by the captain. Two lives collide when the pirates capture the vessel holding Ailin. The kraken holds the key to Ailin's freedom but in summoning the beast one last time, Fenton must choose between losing his life or his heart&quot;--Back cover.</td>

Summary  "Having brokered a fragile peace with his demons at last, ex-Afghan War pilot Mitch Stuart isn't in the market for redemption. But when he steps outside his comfort zone to help a stranger in a country pub, he inadvertently opens the door to the ghosts of a woman and a white dog he thought he'd left behind him long ago. Veterinary specialist Lennie O'Donnell and her beloved dog, Pesh, are taking a break from big-city life to help Lennie's grandfather sell his old-fashioned rural clinic. Lennie has dedicated her career to healing those unable to tell her what's wrong, but Mitch is a puzzle even she struggles to solve - or completely let go. Meanwhile, back in Lennie's old home town, another man of mixed messages, her high school crush Benji Cooper, is all grown up and looking at Lennie the way she always dreamed he would. Can Mitch find the courage to let Lennie into his life? And with gorgeous, sunny, funny Benji waiting in the wings, is it a threshold Lennie wants to cross?"--Back cover.

Summary  "Amanda is finding it hard to adjust to Middle School. New faces, new teachers, stuck in a different class than her friends - and if that wasn’t bad enough, now she is a “little kid” again.
How much more of this could she take?Meanwhile, Ben is on top of the world and enjoying school with his friends. His sister is in a different school and finally out of his hair - life was great!All of this changes when a surprise announcement brings the Project Kids back together in a two-school competition to build the best Halloween display. Armed with Vampires, Goblins, Zombies, Ghosts and the lessons they learned on their previous adventure, it seems like there is no way they can lose!"--Publisher's information.

haunted house together - but now she was in way over her head. Those projects had been for fun - but this one was going to be marked! She and her lab partners have to do a class project for the School Science Fair - but they have absolutely no idea where to start or even what to do. Have they finally met their match?Meanwhile, the boys have big problems of their own, and the outcome of their project could mean life or death! OK, maybe not actual death, but they could end up cold, wet and hungry, and with no electronics…for a whole weekend!Join

Summary
"On the 8th of June, 793CE, Fenn is a young apprentice scribe at St. Cuthbert's Monastery on the island of Lindisfarne in Northumbria, England. He is just beginning a relationship with milkmaid Yseld but on that fateful summer's day, he is violently torn from one life and thrust headlong into another. Two strange dragon-headed ships appear on the beach and savage raiders swarm ashore – the first Viking attack on English soil. Fenn tries to save the Lindisfarne Gospels, a priceless manuscript, but its gold and jewel-encrusted cover is ripped from the book and taken as Viking plunder. Fenn is dragged across the sea to a life of cruel slavery in a harsh and foreign land: to a society that could not be more different from his own. After months of brutal existence, Fenn seizes an opportunity to escape. He retrieves the stolen cover of the Gospels and together with four other slaves including a talented, beautiful and mysterious young woman, sets out to cross a thousand miles of uncharted seas and unforgiving landscape, pursued every step of the way by a ruthless and relentless Viking leader as the events of the times unfold and whirl around them. This is Fenn's story. A story of courage and hardship, of despair and joy, and of loyalty and love. Can Fenn fulfill his vow to return the precious manuscript cover and lead his band of fugitives home...? To Lindisfarne"--Back cover.

Summary "As one of the top data security specialists in the US, Parker Johnson has exposed hundreds of digital villains, and their crimes. The hacker is smart, savvy and good at keeping secrets. Parker is also one of the few humans aware of the existence of werewolves, and it's a secret she will do everything to protect. But for how long? Weres are dying by the dozen, and it seems Wildfire, a new drug sold on the internet, is somehow involved. Parker is called in to help the investigation under the protection of Daniel Locke, the icy Alpha Commander who, three years earlier, she had the misfortune of pissing off. Big time. Daniel has spent his life defending those he loves, but he's never faced an enemy that's invisible, and everywhere. No matter how much he distrusts Parker, with the future of his race on the line, his duty to his people comes first. It's just too bad that his steely self-control fails to smother the animal affection that flares each time he meets the curvy, brunette investigator. The fiery woman is as much of an enigma as the puzzle the are unravelling. Supernatural bodies are piling up fast. But can Parker and Daniel save those they love, before they kill each other?--Back cover.

Summary  "Her niece is abducted and her in-laws disappear. Long-deceased agents turn up in garages across the city - dead again. No wonder SSA Ellie Iverson's internal alert goes off the scale. Enigmatic clues and codes from a missing colleague and brother-in-law about the seepage of sensitive FBI data, lead to the sudden death of a team member and leave Delta A spinning. Two new agents, with special talents akin to Ellie's, join the team and ramp her alarm sensors even higher. Her niece's social media life offers clues to a horrifying network and its activities. Working under a directive from the Director of the FBI and with the Wayward Son Protocol, Ellie and Delta A work to disentangle leads from the darknet, stem the flow of death, and bring her family home"--Back cover.

Summary  "Naya, Slink, Stumpy and Hoo have all told their stories, and now it's Mewla's turn. She would always have to have the last word, of course! The team is just leaving Mennon and its newly restructured Warden Centre, and the Urzites are feeling good. They did good work in Mennon. They finally got revenge for Naya, so the Frightful Four can hold their heads up at last. They also made new friends, righted some wrongs, and made a lot of lives better. They can be proud of themselves. Also, they're almost to the hills and Syana, in particular, has been looking forward to that for weeks. It seems that life is finally settling down and they can enjoy the rest of their journey in peace. But, when Mewla is kidnapped, they realise there's more trouble to come. A criminal gang is out to capture as many Urzites as they can and sell them. Humans and Urzites are going to have to work together to overcome this latest threat and keep the Urzites safe and, since Mewla is the only one who can identify the kidnappers, it's going to be up to her to play a leading role. Can she put aside her brat cat ways and help save herself and her friends from a fate worse than death? Help, she might even have to stop being a spoiled kitten and grow up a bit!"--Back cover.

<td>&quot;Hank Smith saved my life, carrying me through a blizzard to his mountain cabin. He doesn't like strangers, and he doesn't like leaving his sanctuary. Now I'm trapped here with him until the snow melts. I see him looking at me. He tries to hide behind a gruff exterior, but I see the longing and the heat burning in his eyes. I know he wants me, and I can't resist him. I want to feel those big, rough hands all over my body. But once he's unleashed his raw, barely tried desire on me, will I be able to leave my mountain man behind, or will he make me his?&quot;--Back cover.</td>

Summary "Laudanum. Irish whiskey. The tried and true escape routes of bordello madam Hennessey Reed. On this occasion she suspects even their combined magic will not soothe her distress. The girl lying violated on the undertaker's table will remain dead, wounds horrifying and inexplicable, reminiscent of Indian sacrifice. Hennessey treasures the uneasy peace she has found in the remote town of Melancholy in 1880s Idaho Territory. However the discovery of three more young victims - all girls of similar age to her daughter Evie - compromises this hard-won equilibrium when she recognizes one of the girls. Usually content to tend her own business and leave others to mind theirs, Hennessey decides U.S. Marshal Rafael Cooper requires her help to search for the killer but acknowledges, if consulted, he may not necessarily agree. Although helped by an eclectic group dedicated to the barstools in her saloon, she is hindered by demons stifled by addiction and myopic hatred of Jedidiah Cannon: a man from her past she is convinced is involved in the present-day murders. So with her Bowie strapped to her calf and wolfhound Raven at her side Hennessey sets out to investigate - a one-woman stampede"--Publisher information.

Having always prided himself on his ability to find rational explanations, Ethan's trust in concrete evidence and logic is tested by the mystery of Oakwood and Tomas's disappearance. Donovan Campbell's happy, sometimes flippant, exterior hides a past he'd rather forget. As he struggles with his memories and to hold on to the inn he owns with his best friend, the last thing Donovan needs is for some guy he's only just met to start getting under his skin. When a bank robbery escalates into a dangerous situation, Donovan must embrace a part of himself he can no longer ignore in order to save a future that might never have the chance to exist. When a new and power-hungry cartel nabs Belinda Collins from her sister's wedding party at an exclusive jungle resort in Peru, John Garcia, a.k.a. Beast, tries to stop the kidnapping—only to be taken himself. The couple are transported deep into the Amazon rain forest and a ransom is demanded. The pair know that as soon as their kidnappers realize Beast isn't famous, they'll consider him surplus to requirements and kill him. Their only hope is escape. But with no jungle experience between them, running into the rain forest could be just as deadly as taking their chances with their kidnappers. With their friends at Benson Security searching for the pair, and the jungle-savvy cartel hunting them down, Beast and Belinda have to work together to get out of the rain forest alive—before someone, or something, ensures they never leave at all"--Back cover.

It's also where three people at very different points in their lives share a fleeting encounter. There is Katherine, known to history as Elsie K. Morton, famous journalist and author; Jim, an alcoholic with a young family; and Lorna, a teenage mother who has turned to religion, looking for a fresh start. As the stories of their lives are revealed, so too are their hopes and vulnerabilities. Set in the 1950s, as New Zealand society is starting to change under the pressure of new cultural energies, Rotoroa is a compassionate, beautifully unfolding examination of loss and the possibility of renewal."--Publisher's website.

Summary  "Berlin, 1943. An encounter with an old friend leaves German physicist Dr. Kristopher Lehrer with doubts about his work. But when he confronts his superior, everything goes horribly wrong. Suddenly Kristopher and Michel, a member of the Resistance, are on the run, hunted for treason and a murder they did not commit. If they’re caught, Kristopher’s knowledge could be used to build a terrible weapon that could win the war. For the team sent by the Allies, led by Captain Bryant, Sergeant Lowe, and Dr. Zhou, a simple mission escalates into a deadly game against the Gestapo, with Dr. Lehrer as the ultimate prize. But in enemy territory, surviving and completing their mission will test their strengths and loyalties and prove more complex than ever imagined!"--Back cover.

| Summary        | "Bert is the takes-no-crap bar owner of Smack-dab, a struggling tavern halfway from nowhere to nowhere else. All around her is barren, post-apocalyptic Waste, a terrifying place plagued by villainous bandits, ravenous monsters, and things that go bump in the night (and also eat you). The Waste is in turmoil. Lord Ash has been overthrown, replaced by a terrifyingly powerful giant hell-bent on taxing anyone and everyone that can help fund his devious master plan. Smack-dab is threatened with total destruction, but Bert has a plan of her own. Can she rally enough help to fend off the bandits?"--Back cover. |

Summary "Her partner, Jack, has been sent on secondment for a month to the Solomon's and Claire plans to use the time he's away to settle down to her studies, observe Dry July and think about the direction in which their passionate relationship is heading. If only life were that simple! the night Claire meets newly arrived property developer Jim Mason is also the night she has a chance conversation with investigative journalist Andrew Camborne, who's been researching reports of crime and corruption on the Kapiti Coast. A short time later, Claire is witness to an altercation between the two men. The next morning, Andrew's dead body is found on a Paraparaumu Street. Is the cause of death accident, or homicide? Claire's just taken on Jim's teenage daughter, Melody, as a flying student, so she desperately hopes Andrew's death is accidental, but rumours are circulating that suggest Jim and his company might be central to an upsurge of crime and corruption occurring in Kapiti. When Claire and Melody are abducted, Claire is forced to fly her kidnappers to the safety of a remote hideout. Thrust forcibly into a world of eco-terrorism, drug-smuggling and violence, the two women have to use all their initiative to survive. Claire's skill and courage as a pilot is put to the ultimate test as she and Melody seek to extricate themselves from their plight"—Back cover.

Caught in a series of Allied bombings, they stop to help civilians and narrowly escape capture by German forces. While investigating a downed aircraft in the Black Forest, the two men discover an injured RAF pilot. After they are separated, Kristopher and the pilot are discovered by a German officer who claims he is not who he appears to be. Determined to find Michel again, Kristopher has to trust the stranger and hope the man is not connected to those hunting him. Meanwhile Michel is intercepted by one of the Allied soldiers he met in Berlin. His help is needed to save one of their own. Time quickly runs out, and loyalties are tested and betrayed as their enemies close in. Michel can only hope they reach safety before information is revealed that could compromise not only his and Kristopher’s lives, but those of the remaining members of the Allied team—if it is not already too late"--Back cover.

Summary

"Dan Davin, best known for his prose fiction, memoirs and work in academic publishing, also wrote poetry. Not that he wrote poetry throughout his life; rather, it was almost exclusively written in three discrete periods: during the mid-to-late 1930s while at university in New Zealand and England; during the Second World War while on service in Greece, North Africa, and Italy; and after his retirement from the Clarendon Press in England in the mid-eighties. 'A field officer's notebook' makes this body of work available to to general readers for the first time. Although all Davin's poems deserve to be read, those he wrote during his time as an intelligence officer with the Second New Zealand Division are revelatory"--Back cover.

Summary
"Sometimes even the smallest kindness is rewarded even if it takes a lifetime. When wealthy old Jack Landseer and the eccentric and even older Betty Krilich meet - apparently by accident - they begin an odd relationship which gradually evolves into one of mutual trust, affection and, yes, love. Set in small-town provincial New Zealand, The Fine Art of Kindness is a gentle read about two old people who need to overcome their strange and secret past if they are to share their future."--Back cover.

Summary  "Meet The Scraeling...’The most dangerous little bugger alive’ is how the terrible Landwaster, Harald Hardraada, describes his chief of staff, The Scraeling, and this novel chronicles part of his story. Torn at fifteen from a convent devastated by a viking raid, the cripple derisively nicknamed ‘The Scraeling’ uses his intellect, his learning and his organisational skills not just to survive in a world that prizes strength and savagery above all else, but to become indispensable to the band and its ruthless leader. Ironically, the Landwaster is unaware of just how right he is, for The Scraeling’s secret, unswerving and lifelong purpose is not only to betray his fearsome master but to end the day of the viking itself. In his own words, “I smile at him, flatter him, counsel him and plan for him so that he may lean on me as upon a staff. And one day his staff will turn in his hand and kill him and his as they killed mine...” This is the story of his long journey to adulthood and a terrible revenge, a journey that sees him become a byword for cunning, for planning and for outwitting his fellow man. The adult Scraeling pits these skills against the most rapacious band of pagans who ever walked the earth to the embarrassment of its Creator...It’s no secret that Harald Hardraada died outside York at the hand of one of the three warriors who contended for the English throne in 1066, but the Scraeling’s part in that has certainly been overlooked by history. Until now...”--Back cover.

Summary  "Peter Collie is adrift in the wake of his wife’s death. His attempts to understand the turn his life has taken lead him back to the past, to dismaying events on an Amsterdam houseboat in the seventies, returning to New Zealand and meeting Moira, an amateur painter who carried secrets of her own, and to a trip to Europe years later with his family. An unexpected revelation forces Peter to navigate anew his roles as a husband, father and son. Set in Wellington after the fall of the Twin Towers, and traversing London, Europe and the Indian subcontinent, The New Ships is a mesmerising book of blood-ties that stretch across borders. A novel of acute moral choices, it is a rich and compelling meditation on what it means to act, or to fail to act"--Back cover.

Summary "She’s abandoned ship. His secrets haunt him daily. Can two wayward souls keep their love afloat when the winds of change begin to blow? Rebecca Ryan’s marriage is on the rocks. She’s at an impasse, torn between the stress of fertility treatments and a husband who refuses to love a childless wife. Rebecca hopes a trip to a remote southern coast will clear her mind, but when a storm disrupts her search for serenity, she’s left stranded and alone. Fate has never been too kind to Heath Morgan. Haunted by a tragic past and left to roam the Earth in the shadow of his past mistakes, he finally stumbles upon a chance at redemption. For once, he was in the right place at the right time to save a beautiful stranger. Heath’s chance encounter with Rebecca could be a new opportunity for romance – if he’s willing to let his past sink to the bottom of the ocean. Rebecca and Heath feel a pull stronger than any current. But they’ll need to confront painful losses if they have any chance at charting a new course toward love" -- Back cover.

The Project Kids really have their work cut out for themselves this time. After Peter Johansen nearly destroyed the Valentine’s Dance, you might expect the Project Kids to be glad to see the last of ‘Pimple Pete’. So why are they reaching out to him - and what do they hope to achieve? As one small idea takes on a life of its own and one of their own is struck down in their prime, they find themselves struggling to answer one simple question: Can they actually un-bully a bully? …And should they even try? The answer lies in an unexpected place…And not even the Easter Bunny can help them.... Parent/Teacher Note: This next book in the Project Kids Adventures series sees the kids tackling several interrelated projects at once. While carefully investigating the reasons behind Pimple Pete’s bullying behavior, they find themselves engaged in a cause that extends well beyond the school and their community”--Publisher information.

Summary: "The New Templars, a modern-day underground organization of assassins and mercenaries who execute paid contracts, once again encounter their arch nemesis, a Neo-Nazi organization focused on world domination. The Nazi's are fixated on creating a World War. Out of the ashes of this war, the Nazi's see themselves as rising up and leading a new world order. In spite of all their experienced careful planning, the Templars find themselves trapped in the Nazi web, leading to situations which could inevitably spell disaster for the Templars and for the entire world"--Back cover of paperback.

Summary  "Heidi always dreamed of being a society photographer for the rich and famous. Instead, her first film project plunges her into a world of subterfuge as she joins a courageous group committed to saving orangutans in the wild. Their investigations lead them into the shadowy world of factory farming and they risk protest after protest with exhilarating success. There’s danger, disguise and daring and more than a little mischief. But when the police come calling at their school, has it been one stunt too many?"--Publisher's website.

Author: Wehinger, Brandy, 1977- author.

ISBN: 9781775534921 paperback
9781775534938 EPUB

Physical Details: 1 online resource: illustrations

Summary: "Blue is set in a post-apocalyptic world, where humans live in colonies high above the ground and have forgotten a lot of what pre-zombie life was like, for instance there are no cell phones or internet etc. Told through a small collection of voices whose stories unfold and then tie-in together... The main character, Blue is a half-zombie, half-human. The Blue is an interesting state of being: somewhere between 'normal' and a walking corpse. The Blue is mostly immortal, yet desperately alone"--Publisher information.

Summary  "When Merv's wife, Bella, dies suddenly and unexpectedly, grief plunges him into depths of love and realms of spiritual experience unknown to him before. As a skeptical psychologist, he fears this may just be a comforting delusion and struggles to make sense of it. Finally he concedes that the heart has its own way of knowing, and that a broken heart may be the doorway to a timeless dimension that transcends all separation - even death"--Publisher information.

Summary: "17 year old Tara McClusky's life is hard. She shares the care of her paralysed father with her domineering, difficult mother, forced to cut down on her hours at school to help support the family with a part-time rest home job. She's very much alone, still grieving the loss of her older sister Van, who died five years before. Her only source of consolation is her obsession with art -- and painting in particular. Most especially she is enamoured with Vincent Van Gogh: she has read all his letters and finds many parallels between the tragic story of his life and her own"--Publisher information.

Summary  Two countries, two choices, one life. When Kyraenean slave Celeste risks her life to reach the free nation of Etraea, a country filled with technology and wealth, she unknowingly sets off a chain of events that will change her life forever. After escaping her new owner, Celeste awakens in the home of an Etraean soldier, sworn to protect the fragile peace. For Corporal Mick Haynes, life is simple. Follow the rules, do your job and work your way up the ranks. Getting shot and finding a wanted slave at his family's farm wasn't part of the plan. When a Kyraenean bounty hunter locates Celeste, Mick's loyalty will be stretched to the limit. With war on the horizon, Celeste faces two impossible choices. Both securing her freedom, but both at a cost she could never have imagined. Will Etraea provide the freedom she's longed for or shackle her to an entirely new master?

Summary  "This paper examines ethnic differences in the relationship between educational attainment and income in New Zealand over the period 1986 to 1996. In particular, it uses a 50% sample from the Census in each of those years to determine how far ethnic differences in income are explained by educational qualifications, access to higher paying occupations and industries, hours of work, locality of residence and marital status. The study is restricted to all those employed."--Publisher's website.

Effective tax rates on capital in New Zealand: changes 1972-1998 / Alowin Moes.

Effective tax rates (rather than statutory tax rates) on capital assets can give us an idea of the level of distortion imposed on investment by the tax system. This paper describes a study of effective tax rates on different types of capital assets in New Zealand using the King-Fullerton methodology. While the usual caveats of the application of King-Fullerton methodology apply, a clear story emerges from the data. The model demonstrates the severely negative impact of inflation, especially under the old tax regime and at the high rates of inflation seen in the late 1970s and 80s. By comparison, the current tax system is shown to be rather consistent across different types of capital assets and means of financing. The low inflation of the past few years has contributed to the improvement, but this study shows that the new tax regime performs better even under equalised circumstances (e.g. zero inflation) for the whole period under consideration."—Publisher's website.

Summary "This report provides a literature review on the practical experience of measures in other countries with a similar legal background to New Zealand to give economic incentive to biodiversity conservation on private land. It examines the strengths and weaknesses of the measures and draws out their relevance to New Zealand. The measures identified can be broadly characterised as conservation management agreements and fixed period contracts between conservation agencies and individual landholders over defined areas of land; purchase of partial interests in land; purchase of freehold interest in land and subsequent management by a conservation agency or voluntary body; restricting landholder development rights and allowing them to trade residual entitlements; and establishing proprietary rights in wildlife products."--Publisher's website.

Author: Szeto, Kam Leong, 1963- author.
Physical Details: 1 online resource : illustrations
Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 04/10.
Summary: "This paper estimates the non-increasing inflation rate of unemployment or NAIRU for New Zealand. A NAIRU that varies over time has important implications in considering inflationary pressures. This paper estimates the time-varying NAIRU using a Kalman filter on a reduced form approach and extends previous studies in several ways. Using different model specifications and dependent variables suggests a band of NAIRU estimates of between four and five percent (with further error bands around that). The results of this paper indicate that the NAIRU is a relevant concept and the unemployment gap should be one of the factors considered when assessing inflationary pressure."--Publisher's website.

Title Estimating the costs of crime in New Zealand in 2003/04 / Tim Roper and Andrew Thompson.

Author Roper, Tim, author.

Physical Details 1 online resource

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 06/04.

Summary "We estimate that the total costs of crime in New Zealand in 2003/04 amounted to $9.1 billion. Of this, the private sector incurred $7 billion in costs and the public sector $2.1 billion. Offences against private property are the most common crimes but offences against the person are the most costly, accounting for 45% of the total estimated costs of crime. Empirically-based measures like those presented here – the total and average costs of crime by category – are a useful aid to policy analysis around criminal justice operations and settings. However, care needs to be taken when interpreting these results because they rely considerably on assumptions, including the assumed volume of actual crime, and the costs that crime imposes on victims. This difficulty in constructing robust estimates also implies that care should be taken not to draw conclusions about whether the Government should be putting more or less resources into any specific categories of crime, based on their relative costs alone."--Publisher's website.

Title  Facts about economic integration : how integrated is New Zealand with the rest of the world? / Vicki Plater & Megan Claridge.
Author  Plater, Vicki, author.
Physical Details  1 online resource : colour illustrations
Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 00/21.
Summary  "The paper provides comparative data about New Zealand's current level of market and policy integration with the rest of the world. Market integration occurs when two or more economies function as a single market. It is likely to be evidenced by high flows of goods, services, capital and labour and convergence of prices. Policy openness and integration are means governments might use to encourage, impede or direct market integration. Indicators include lack of barriers to cross border flows and similarity or compatibility of policy settings between countries."--Publisher's website.

Title: Financial systems and economic growth : an evaluation framework for policy / Iris Claus, Veronica Jacobsen and Brock Jera.
Author: Claus, Iris, author.
Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations
Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 04/17.
Summary: "The purpose of this paper is to develop an analytical framework for discussing the link between financial systems and economic growth. Financial systems help overcome an information asymmetry between borrowers and lenders. If they do not function well, economic growth will be negatively affected. Three policy implications follow. First, the analysis underscores the importance of maintaining solid legal foundations because the financial system relies on these. Second, it demonstrates the necessity for reforming tax policy as it applies to investment, as this is demonstrated to significantly affect the operation of the financial system. Finally, given the importance of financial development for economic growth, a more in-depth review of New Zealand's financial system in the context of financial regulation and supervision would be valuable."--Publisher's website.

Title: Financing New Zealand Superannuation / Brian McCulloch and Jane Frances.

Author: McCulloch, Brian, author.

Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/20.

Summary: "The New Zealand Superannuation Fund is being established as a means of smoothing out the impact on the rest of the Crown's finances of the transition that will take place over the next fifty years to a permanently higher proportion of the population being eligible for New Zealand Superannuation, the universal pension paid to New Zealanders over the age of 65. This paper discusses the financial issues surrounding the determination of the contributions that the Government would be required to make to the Fund over time in order to meet this objective. The calculation of the required contribution rate is derived as a function of future expected entitlement payments, future expected nominal GDP, future expected investment returns, and the Fund balance. Estimation issues are discussed and the implications of volatility in investment returns are examined. Some issues in assessing long-term expected returns are addressed in an appendix."--Publisher's website.

Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury); 00/01.

Summary
"The working paper compares and contrasts the macroeconomic performance of the New Zealand and Finnish economies over the entire post-WW2 period. It notes that Finland has gradually overtaken NZ in terms of GDP per capita, productivity performance and export performance. Finland suffered a severe recession in the early 1990s (the deepest affecting any western industrialised economy in the Post WW2 period). Very high growth rates since 1994 in Finland may partly be ascribed to cyclical rebound from this recession, with much of the remainder driven by rapid growth in the telecommunications giant Nokia. Finland also faces some particular policy challenges: high structural unemployment, medium term fiscal pressures from an ageing population and impediments to the growth of small and medium sized enterprises."--Publisher's website.

Series
Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury); 04/11.

Summary
"Previous work has suggested that New Zealand’s firm dynamics and business demographics show a high proportion of small firms, small average firm size, and high rates of firm and employment turnover by comparison with other OECD countries. This paper reports on new comparative analyses of New Zealand’s firm dynamics and business demography that attempt to control for measurement differences, using data from Statistics New Zealand’s Business Demographic Statistics database, the OECD firm-level project, and the OECD’s analysis of the Eurostat database. The variables investigated include firm size, firm turnover (entry and exit) rates, employment turnover rates, firm survival rates, and firm growth. The findings suggest that once measurement differences are taken into account, overall New Zealand’s firm dynamics and demographics are broadly similar to many other OECD countries. Potential policy implications of these findings are discussed."--Publisher's website.

Summary  "Recent evidence on the impact of fiscal policy – taxes, public expenditures and budget deficits – on long-run growth in OECD countries has adopted the Barro (1990) framework to distinguish between ‘productive’ and ‘unproductive’ expenditures, and ‘distortionary’ and ‘non-distortionary’ taxes. Using estimated long-run growth effects from these fiscal variables, this paper simulates the effects on growth rates of observed fiscal policy changes in the EU." --Publisher's website.

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 03/03.

Summary "This paper discusses the latest thinking in the relationships between the economics of trade, geography and industrial clusters. The aim of the paper is to explain the relevance of these various arguments for the economy of New Zealand and to suggest a possible public policy role for overcoming the growth problems associated with geographic periphery. As we will see, much of the current thinking on the relationships between geography, trade and clusters implies that New Zealand’s long-term growth prospects are rather weak. However, it will be argued here that a detailed consideration of these relationships, plus some evidence from the UK, also provides some guidance as to possible strategies which New Zealand can employ to promote growth. In particular, the development of public policies which are specifically aimed at reducing the spatial market-area constraints of the New Zealand small-firm sector may be worthwhile."--Publisher's website.

Title: Geometric return and portfolio analysis / Brian McCulloch.
Author: McCulloch, Brian, author.
Physical Details: 1 online resource : illustrations
Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 03/28.
Summary: "Expected geometric return is routinely reported as a summary measure of the prospective performance of asset classes and investment portfolios. It has intuitive appeal because its historical counterpart, the geometric average, provides a useful annualised measure of the proportional change in wealth that actually occurred over a past time series, as if there had been no volatility in return. However, as a prospective measure, expected geometric return has limited value and often the expected annual arithmetic return is a more relevant statistic for modelling and analysis. Despite this, the distinction between expected annual arithmetic return and expected geometric return is not well understood, both in respect of individual asset classes and in respect of portfolios. This confusion persists even though it is explained routinely in finance textbooks and other reference sources. Even the supposedly straightforward calculation of weighted average portfolio return becomes somewhat complicated, and can produce counterintuitive results, if the focus of future-orientated reporting is expected geometric return. This paper explains these issues and applies them in the context of the calculations underlying the projections for the New Zealand Superannuation Fund."--Publisher's website.

Title: Go west, young man, go west!? / Peter Bushnell and Wai Kin Choy.
Author: Bushnell, Peter G. author.
Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations
Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/07.
Summary: "Will economic integration lead to skilled citizens being drawn to the larger, richer economic partner? In 1983, Australia and New Zealand signed the Closer Economic Relations Agreement to ensure free trade in goods and services. Was this a modern equivalent of Horace Greeley's famous advice "Go West, young man, go West"? The evidence presented in this paper suggests that Greeley was right; many have indeed gone westward. However, a common labour market has not led to a brain drain. Paradoxically, the effect has been to increase the numbers of lower-skilled migrants from New Zealand and those with higher skills who are older or are not within the approved occupational groupings. The Trans-Tasman picture is further complicated by migration to New Zealand from third countries sufficient to offset the outflow of New Zealand citizens. The imbalance in net migration from New Zealand toward Australia has led to policy tensions. These are discussed briefly."--Publisher's website.

Summary "Most people have had some experience with gold as jewellery, either wearing it or admiring it. Some may have gone looking for it on old gold-fields. You may even have some in your security box in a bank. But there's more to this metal than a means of adornment or a bid for security. The cultural, industrial and economic history of this precious metal link back to the chemical properties of one of the most useful metals on earth. Come with us on a journey to discover why gold is both revered and loathed, and why it will continue to serve and to fascinate us for generations to come"--Amazon.com

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 98/02.
Summary "This paper investigates the agency problems associated with the public management of a large financial asset portfolio. After considering the relevant theoretical and empirical literature, a set of institutional arrangements are presented that should reduce the extent of the potential agency problems faced. Key design features include: mechanisms for enhancing policy credibility; the use of existing market mechanisms and regulation where possible; and the creation of a public-sector institution to perform administrative functions. The paper does not consider the issues of optimal fiscal policy, or the appropriate risk tolerance for the Crown, although the conclusions drawn from this study may contribute to these debates."--Publisher's website.

Title  Growing pains : New Zealand qualitative evidence on hurdles to exporting growth / Geoff Simmons.

Author  Simmons, Geoff, author.

Published Details  Wellington, New Zealand : New Zealand Treasury, 2002.

Physical Details  1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/10.

Summary  "This paper surveys qualitative evidence with the aim of identifying consistent issues surrounding the growth of New Zealand firms. The available literature is focussed on exporters and raises the possibility of two "hurdles" to growth for New Zealand firms. The first is the fixed-cost hurdle to entering exporting. The second is the hurdle of establishing the offshore distribution channels required for continued growth. While the evidence for these hurdles is far from conclusive, their existence is consistent with many of the available case studies. The hurdle to ongoing growth may explain why so many promising New Zealand companies are sold to foreign firms in the same industry. Overseas ownership by a firm in the same industry often solves the distribution problems of many small New Zealand firms and allows growth to continue. The outcome of overseas ownership is therefore not necessarily bad for New Zealand."--Publisher's website.

Title  Growth and volatility regime switching models for New Zealand GDP data / Robert A Buckle, David Haugh and Peter Thomson.

Author  Buckle, Robert, author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/08.

Summary  "This paper fits hidden Markov switching models to New Zealand GDP data. A primary objective is to better understand the utility of these methods for modelling growth and volatility regimes present in the New Zealand data and their interaction. Properties of the models are developed together with a description of the estimation methods, including use of the Expectation Maximisation (EM) algorithm. The models are fitted to New Zealand GDP and production sector growth rates to analyse changes in their mean and volatility over time. The paper discusses applications of the methodology to identifying changes in growth performances, and examines the timing of growth and volatility regime switching between production sectors. Conclusions to emerge are that, in contrast to the 1980s, New Zealand GDP growth experienced an unusually long period of time in high growth and low volatility regimes during the 1990s. The paper evaluates sector contributions to this 1990s experience and discusses directions for further development."--Publisher's website.

Title: Healthy, wealthy and wise?: a review of the wider benefits of education / Grant Johnston.

Author: Johnston, Grant, author.

Physical Details: 1 online resource

Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 04/04.

Summary: "This paper reviews evidence that a greater education causes better outcomes in life, over and above the effects of having a higher-paying job. Comparatively little has been written which draws together evidence on the wider (that is, wider than just earnings-related) benefits of education, although studies which ignore these benefits might considerably underestimate the total return from a additional year of education or an additional qualification. Research suggests that increased education, as measured by the time people spend in formal education or the qualifications they attain, may cause a reduction in cigarette smoking, anxiety disorders, anti-social disorders, suicide, crime, teenage pregnancies, unemployment and reliance on welfare benefits, at least when these outcomes are measured in young adulthood. Education may also have an effect on people’s health. The wider benefits of education are difficult to quantify, however, and the degree of uncertainty around them is considerable. Policy-makers would be unwise to rely too heavily on the existence of wider benefits when making decisions about public investment in education."--Publisher's website.

<td>Summary</td>
<td>&quot;How well have New Zealand households fared over a decade of extensive economic and social changes? This study compares household incomes in 1997/98 with household incomes in 1987/88, using the concept of &quot;final income&quot;. Final income is a measure of the income accruing to households after adjusting for payments to, and benefits from, central government, whether these benefits are in cash or in kind. In particular, receipt of government health and education services is counted as adding to a household’s income, and payment of consumption taxes is counted as taking away from a household’s income. In all income deciles, the real final incomes of households were, on average, at least maintained between 1987/88 and 1997/98 and in most cases increased. Government intervention, through taxes, cash benefits and social services, has acted to protect less well-off households over a period of upheaval in New Zealand.&quot;--Publisher's website.</td>

Title Household net wealth : an international comparison / Iris Claus and Grant Scobie.
Author Claus, Iris, author.
Physical Details 1 online resource : colour illustrations
Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/19.
Summary "Household saving can be measured as either the difference between the flows of current income and expenditure, or through households' balance sheets as changes in the stocks of accumulated net wealth. This paper examines household saving in New Zealand and other OECD countries, with particular focus on the stock of net wealth. The ratio of real assets to disposable income in New Zealand is close to OECD levels. However, household financial net wealth as a proportion of disposable income has been falling in New Zealand since the late 1980s, whereas it has been rising in other OECD countries. As a result, housing assets in New Zealand have become an increasing share of households' wealth portfolios. The implied savings rate from households' balance sheets is significantly higher than the flow measure. Moreover, it follows the business cycle more closely, consistent with consumption smoothing behaviour by households."--Publisher's website.

Title Household saving behaviour in New Zealand : a cohort analysis / John K Gibson and Grant M Scobie.
Author Gibson, John, 1964- author.
Physical Details 1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)
Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/18.
Summary "This paper seeks to improve our understanding of household saving behaviour. It is based on an analysis of unit record data from March years 1984 to 1998 taken from the Household Economic Survey (HES). There are limitations of the data set but it provides the only available estimates of income and expenditure, from which saving is estimated as a residual. The HES is a series of cross-sectional surveys rather than a true panel, so we construct synthetic cohorts rather than tracking individual households. We use a range of regression models to separate out the effect of age, birth-year cohort and year on saving rates. The typical age profile for savings is hump-shaped, peaks around age 57 and does not become negative at older ages. Such a profile appears to have shifted down for the cohorts born between 1920 and 1939 relative to the younger and older cohorts studied. This pattern of cohort effects is robust to the inclusion of conditioning variables and to the trimming from the sample of households with either negative or very large ratios of savings to consumption. Preliminary investigation supports the hypothesis that changes in the economic and policy environment help explain the different saving behaviour of different birth cohorts. Tentative results suggest that more favourable environments are associated with lower rates of lifetime saving, although more research is needed to confirm this finding."--Publisher's website.

The aim of this paper is to add to the understanding of saving decisions by households. The saving behaviour of households is found to differ depending on the birth cohort of the household head. This paper seeks to explain why this pattern might exist. It is based on an analysis of synthetic cohorts derived from unit record data taken from the Household Economic Survey (HES) for the March years 1984 to 1998. The need to use synthetic cohorts arises as the HES is not a longitudinal panel survey, but rather a time series of independent cross-sectional samples. We use a range of regression models to separate out the effect of age, birth-year cohort and year on saving rates. The typical saving rates for the cohorts born between 1920 and 1939 are found to be significantly lower relative to the younger and older cohorts studied. This pattern of cohort effects is robust to the inclusion of conditioning variables; to the trimming from the sample of households with either negative or very large ratios of savings to consumption, and to different definitions of saving. Some exploratory investigation supports the hypothesis that changes in the economic and policy environment help explain the different saving behaviour of different birth cohorts. Tentative results suggest that more “favourable environments” are associated with lower rates of lifetime saving."--Publisher's website.
Title Household savings : a survey of recent microeconomic theory and evidence / Andrew Coleman.

Author Coleman, Andrew M. G. (Andrew Michael Guy), 1964- author.

Physical Details 1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 98/08.

Summary "This paper summarises recent theoretical and empirical developments in the vast literature that has examined the microeconomic determinants of household saving. It is designed as a primer to provide a basic understanding of some of the developments in the literature in the last decade. The paper uses the standard intertemporal optimising model as the basic organisational framework, and includes a discussion of precautionary savings, liquidity constraints and bequests. The empirical data is examined in light of this framework. Three key issues related to superannuation provision arise. First, evidence suggests that in most countries households continue to save after retirement. Second, in several countries there is evidence that most people hold very few financial assets at any stage of their lives, and a large number of people hold very few assets, either financial or real. Third, intergenerational transfers appear to provide a motive for the lack of consumption for many of the elderly, particularly the wealthy."--Publisher's website.

Summary "In 2001, Statistics New Zealand conducted a major survey of the assets and liabilities of New Zealanders called the Household Savings Survey (HSS). This paper presents the results of an analysis of ownership and investment in housing based on the results of that survey. International comparisons suggest that the rates of home ownership, investment in property and housing debt levels in New Zealand are broadly comparable with those in Australia and the United States and with a wider set of countries. An exception is that younger age groups in New Zealand hold more investment property than their counterparts in the USA and Australia."--Publisher's website.

Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/13.

Summary: "This paper constructs a composite index of leading indicators of New Zealand employment. The choice of variables and their weights in the composite index are determined by their concordance with employment. The composite index is included in an indicator model to forecast quarterly employment growth. The indicator model explains about 67 percent of the quarterly variation in employment, in sample, and correctly predicted the direction of next period employment almost 80 percent of the time, out of sample."--Publisher's website.

Title  Income tax revenue elasticities with endogenous labour supply / John Creedy and Norman Gemmell.

Author  Creedy, John, 1949- author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/22.

Summary  "It is important for the design of tax policy to be able to measure reliably the income elasticity of tax revenue. This gives the extent to which tax revenues change as a result of a change in earnings. Analytical expressions for income tax revenue elasticities treat earnings as exogenous, so that they do not accommodate the endogenous response of labour supply to the income tax system. This paper shows how these expression can be adapted to allow for endogenous labour supply. It identifies how far, and in what circumstances, labour supply effects are quantitatively important for revenue responsiveness estimates, both for individual taxpayers and in aggregate. It is shown that even a relatively simple tax-benefit structure can produce labour supply responses which considerably alter tax revenue elasticity calculations. It is shown that, even with modest leisure preferences, tax-wage elasticities are significantly higher than tax-income elasticities."--Publisher's website.

<td>&quot;Economic theory provides a coherent framework for analysing the elements of growth and sustainable development. Robust policies and appropriate institutional structures are essential to achieving sustainable development. Environmental problems are rooted in failed markets and their resolution requires government taking some kind of action – to establish property rights, set standards of liability, apply polluter pays taxes, or regulate. There is ample evidence showing that market based instruments can achieve the same environmental outcome at considerably less cost relative to command and control. Rational policy must seriously consider the use of market-based instruments.&quot;--Publisher's website.</td>

Title: Internal mobility in New Zealand / Suzi Kerr, Dave Maré William Power and Jason Timmins.

Author: Kerr, Suzi, 1966- author.

Physical Details: 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/04.

Summary: "What characteristics push people to move and what pulls them to a new location? Evidence from the US has suggested that people are pulled to cities with a high population density and with large concentrations of skilled people. But how does this apply to New Zealand? Where are people moving to and from and what are the characteristics associated with the migrants' origins and destinations? This paper investigates the effect that the characteristics of a community have on the likelihood of people leaving and/or travelling to the community. The movement of people is obtained from a mobility table produced from census data by Statistics New Zealand. We use geographical information system (GIS) tools to define variables based on aggregations of meshblocks around the area units of interest. How does migration vary geographically across New Zealand? We model migration decisions and investigate their causes. Who moves and where do they go? We investigate the broad characteristics of areas that exhibit high losses and/or gains in population through migration. We investigate the relationship between the level of turnover or 'churning' of people with the characteristics of the population in that area."--Publisher's website.

Title  Investing in well-being: an analytical framework / Veronica Jacobsen, Nicholas Mays, Ron Crawford, Barbara Annesley, Paul Christoffel, Grant Johnston and Sid Durbin.

Author  Jacobsen, Veronica, author.

Physical Details  1 online resource: colour illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/23.

Summary  "The NZ Treasury is currently engaged in a project to identify cost-effective interventions to improve outcomes for children and young adults in order to maximise the value of government expenditures across the social sector. The central aim of this paper is to provide an empirically-robust framework to compare intervention across a range of social sectors. There are two key components to the framework. The first is a life-course view of child development that emphasises that experiences and influences in childhood can affect well-being throughout life. The second component involves viewing social expenditures as investments addressed at achieving particular outcomes, typically directed at enhancing well-being. The paper presents evidence from a review of the literature on how the process and experiences of childhood have a later impact on well-being; how child development and outcomes are influenced by individual, family and communal factors and how risk and resilience can be used to indicate that an individual is at increased or decreased risk of negative outcomes. Case studies of youth suicide, teenage pregnancy, educational underachievement and youth inactivity provide evidence about what interventions work using key empirical findings from the literature."--Publisher's website.

Title  The Irish economy: lessons for New Zealand? / Sarah Box.

Author  Box, Sarah, author.

Physical Details  1 online resource: colour illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 98/01.

Summary  "This paper compares and contrasts the economies of Ireland and New Zealand. It attempts to identify important factors behind Ireland's recent strong growth, and seeks to derive 'lessons' for New Zealand. It is suggested that Ireland has benefited from its location, openness, macroeconomic stability, favourable demographics, educated population, wage moderation, foreign investment, European Union transfers, and luck! From a New Zealand viewpoint, the Irish experience reiterates the significance of quality investment, education and human capital, and macroeconomic stability and openness. But given the differences between the two countries, caution should be exercised in applying specific Irish policies in New Zealand."--Publisher's website.

Summary "The experience of parenthood is different for everyone. And every day can be different too. Read a hilarious and moving collection of perspectives from the well-loved Emily Writes and her friends. Some of them are experienced writers, others have put pen to paper for the first time. If it takes a village to raise a child, then this writing comes from the whole village. Yet every experience is a real one, and you will feel the joy, the horror, the love and the heart-ache as you read about birthday parties, vasectomies, hugs, hospitals and, of course, sleepless nights"--Publisher information.

Publishing Details [Auckland] : [Junelle], [2014]
Physical Details 1 online resource
Contents I've been waiting -- Intertwined -- Home -- Just this sky -- Hosting shadows -- 101511 -- Refuge.
Summary "Although dubbed an EP, the seven charming tracks on this CD are well worthy of being regarded as a debut album from the soft, soulful voiced and beautifully grounded Junelle Groves. These intimate and beautiful songs are gentle, sultry, evocative, calm and most of all -- mind-full. There's no rushing, no pretence -- just a sharing and a really cool post-clubbing vibe. It's instantly alluring sonically -- both the voice and the accompanying music, all played by Junelle's partner Abraham Kunin (The Means, Esther Stephens, Home Brew), who also recorded, arranged, mixed and produced. Angus McNaughton is responsible for the excellent mastering. There are some very evident 'zen' elements to the whole affair, and not just because Junelle is a practicing Bhuddist. It's the flowing, unforced vibe of all the songs, at least a couple of which have a very Bjork feel (circa 'Vespertine') -- Intertwined and closing track Refuge -- which also has a mantra by Atisha and flute samples by Nitin Amin..."--NZ Musician website.

Title Labour force participation and GDP in New Zealand / John Bryant, Veronica Jacobsen, Matthew Bell and Daniel Garrett.

Author Bryant, John, 1969- author.

Physical Details 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 04/07.

Summary "New Zealand's participation rates are high relative to the OECD, and similar OECD countries. However, there is scope for increasing participation, particularly among young women. Increases in labour force participation could make a contribution towards closing the income gap between New Zealand and wealthier OECD countries. In this paper we calculate the effect on GDP of hypothetical increases in employment from increased participation, taking into account the differences in productivity between new and existing workers. The results suggest that increasing the labour force participation of women aged 25-34 to the average, adjusted for paid maternity leave, of the top 5 OECD nations increases employment by 28,800 and generates an additional $1,215 million of GDP, making GDP 1.0% higher than it actually was in the baseline year 2001. Raising participation overall to the average of the top 5 OECD countries increases employment by 142,600 and generates additional $6,101 million of GDP, an increase of 5.1% more than it would otherwise have been."--Publisher's website.

Title Low wage jobs and pathways to better outcomes / Sue Richardson and Lauren Miller-Lewis.
Author Richardson, Sue, 1946- author.
Physical Details 1 online resource : colour illustrations
Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/29.
Summary "Many people find their first employment in a low wage job. Others accept low wage jobs after a period out of the workforce or unemployed. An issue of vital social interest is the speed with which low wage workers move on to better jobs. This review of the international literature finds that the extent of mobility depends on the definition of low wage, and that the least upwardly mobile are older, less educated workers, including middle aged women, sole mothers and men who have been retrenched. Young, educated, urban workers quickly move to better paid jobs. Everywhere, women are more likely to be low paid than men, and have lower mobility. Higher education reduces the risk of low pay, but not to zero."--Publisher's website.

Summary  "Human capital is increasingly believed to play an important role in the growth process, however, adequately measuring its stock remains controversial. This paper identifies three general approaches to human capital measurement; cost-based, income-based and education-based, and presents a critical review of the theories and their applications to data from a range of countries. Emphasis on empirical evidence will be given to the case of New Zealand."--Publisher's website.

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 99/5.

Summary "This report was prepared for the Department of Labour, Reserve Bank of New Zealand and Treasury by Dr Denis Lawrence (Tasman Asia Pacific) and Professor Erwin Diewert (University of British Columbia) under contract. The authors examine New Zealand’s market sector productivity performance using two databases. One has been prepared by the authors and contains a large number of input and output variables for the period 1972 to 1998. The second database involves data provided to the authors by officials and allows estimates to be prepared for 20 individual market sectors over the period 1978 to 1998."--Publisher's website.

Author Mawson, Peter, author.

Physical Details 1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/14.

Summary "This paper examines New Zealand’s ranking in the OECD based on real GDP per capita. The fall in ranking experienced by New Zealand implies that real GDP per capita growth in New Zealand has been relatively poor in comparison to other OECD countries. The paper examines the history of New Zealand’s growth rate and explores the differences between various techniques for measuring average growth rates. The approaches are all shown to be variants of the average annual growth rate but differ in terms of the weighting structure used. Ultimately, the most appropriate technique depends on the underlying data generating process. The implications of data construction techniques for measured growth rates are discussed and differences between the growth rates obtained from different data sources are illustrated. The paper also illustrates the sensitivity of New Zealand growth rates to the sample period chosen."--Publisher's website.

Summary  "This paper provides an introduction to productivity measurement using index number techniques. Attention is given to the construction of productivity series using common index number formulae, the economic and axiomatic approaches to selecting an index number formula, and the use of chaining. Special attention is also given to measuring physical capital inputs and quality adjusted labour inputs. Numerical examples are used throughout the paper to illustrate the analysis."--Publisher's website.

Migration and economic growth: a 21st century perspective / Cat Moody.

Author: Moody, Cat, author.

Physical Details: 1 online resource: illustrations (some colour)

Series: Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 06/02.

Summary: "While there is extensive literature on the determinants of migration and its microeconomic effects, the New Zealand theoretical or empirical literature specifically examining the effects of migration on economic growth is not as comprehensive. In New Zealand there has been an implicit underlying assumption that immigration is good for economic growth, as evidenced by the attempted use of immigration to resolve particular labour market problems. This paper uses the growth accounting policy framework to discuss the mechanisms through which immigration can impact economic growth. It reviews the contemporary literature with a view to identifying how immigration policy may be adjusted to improve the potential returns to growth from immigration in New Zealand."--Publisher's website.

Title Modelling New Zealand consumption expenditure over the 1990s / Khoon Lek Goh and Richard Downing.
Author Goh, Khoon Lek, 1973- author.
Physical Details 1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)
Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/19.
Summary "This paper presents two models of consumption for the primary purpose of forecasting consumption expenditure growth in New Zealand. The models, which are consistent with a range of consumption functions including the life-cycle and permanent income hypothesis, are error correction models with the long-run equations estimated using both the conventional ordinary least squares procedure as well as the Stock and Watson procedure of leads and lags. Unlike earlier New Zealand studies, actual data on household net wealth, rather than proxies or derived series were used. This allowed the wealth variable to modelled in disaggregated form. Mortgage equity withdrawal by households and funds brought into the economy by immigrants are two novel variables included in the consumption models. Migrant transfers were found to have an influence on short-run consumption growth, but not mortgage equity withdrawal although the latter did contribute to a higher overall model fit. Net non-financial wealth was found to have short-run influence on consumption but not in the long-run."--Publisher's website.

Author  Choy, Wai Kin, author.

Physical Details  1 online resource: illustrations (some colour)

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury); 02/01.

Summary  "This paper adopts a vector autoregressive (VAR) approach to analyse the labour market adjustment mechanisms for 12 New Zealand regions over the period 1985 to 2001. It examines the effects of a region-specific shock to employment on itself, the unemployment rate, the participation rate, and the wage rate. The role of migration as a channel of regional labour market adjustment is also inferred. We find that adjustment occurs predominantly through inter-regional migration although the unemployment and participation rates also play a role. Wages, on the other hand, account for very little adjustment. The importance of inter-regional migration in New Zealand matches the results found in Sweden, but stands in contrast to the picture in many European countries. Migration appears to be a more dominant adjustment channel compared to the US and Australian cases. However, this has to be placed into context - New Zealand regions are much smaller in terms of population size."--Publisher's website.

Title Modelling the effect of population ageing on Government social expenditures / John Bryant.

Author Bryant, John, 1969- author.

Physical Details 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 03/15.

Summary "This paper reviews and extends a new framework, developed by Razin, Sadka, and Swagel, for capturing the effect of population ageing on public support for government social expenditures. Razin et al construct up an overlapping generations, median voter model, and investigate the empirical applicability of the model using panel data from 13 OECD countries. Their results suggest that population ageing will put downward pressure on per capita expenditures. These results rest, however, on an assumption that there is only one dependant age group: the old. This paper investigates the consequences of allowing for two such age groups: the young and the old. A replication of Razin et al's empirical analysis, using two dependent age groups rather than one, suggests that population ageing will instead put upward pressure on per capita expenditures. Although these results are tentative, they illustrate the usefulness of including both youth dependency and old-age dependency in Razin et al's framework."--Publisher's website.

Title  New Zealand's current account deficit : analysis based on the intertemporal optimisation approach / Kunhong Kim, Viv B. Hall and Robert A. Buckle.

Author  Kunhong, Kim, author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/02.

Summary  "New Zealand's Current Account of the Balance of Payments has been persistently in deficit since the early 1970s and increased markedly during the late 1990s. Is this a cause for significant concern? This paper tackles this question by evaluating New Zealand's external solvency, the degree of optimality of the intertemporal consumption smoothing through its current account, and whether its international financial capital flows have been used in an optimal (consumption-smoothing) fashion. We carry out statistical tests in relation to external solvency. We also estimate a "benchmark" consumption-smoothing component for its current account based on an intertemporal optimisation model in order to carry out tests of the optimality of the size and volatility of the current account. We could not reject the hypotheses that New Zealand's current account was consistent with optimal smoothing, that the external solvency condition has been satisfied, and that there is "no excess volatility" in international financial capital flows."--Publisher's website.

Author  Galt, David, 1956- author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 00/09.

Summary  "This paper forms part of the Treasury's ongoing work programme investigating New Zealand's economic performance. It represents one approach to understanding New Zealand's economic performance, that of reviewing theoretical and empirical literature on economic growth. Other research approaches the Treasury is adopting to shed light on these issues include: monitoring New Zealand's total factor productivity performance; learning from overseas experience; and reviewing linkages between specific policy issues and economic growth."--Publisher's website.

Title  New Zealand's venture capital market : a study commissioned by the New Zealand Treasury / prepared by Infometrics Ltd ; study undertaken by Andrew Gawith with input from Gareth Morgan and David Grimmond.

Author  Gawith, A. M. (Andrew M.), author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations (some colour)

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 00/19.

Summary  "New Zealand’s venture capital market is evolving rapidly as capital markets and associated professional service firms respond to the demand for private equity from businesses looking for capital and expertise to expand. The focus of this paper is on how the venture capital market in New Zealand is developing - the size, number and type of participants, the process of attracting and then selecting investments, expected returns, exit strategies possible gaps, and potential policy changes to assist the development of market. The paper is based on interviews with twenty market participants ranging from conventional venture capital firms to corporates with internal venture operations and professional service firms involved in the grooming of potential business opportunities. The market is still relatively immature and although there are currently gaps in the market they are by no means overwhelming. Furthermore, there is evidence that the market is segmenting and expanding to fill most of the obvious gaps, which tend to centre around information asymmetries."--Publisher's website.

Author  Janssen, John, author.
Physical Details  1 online resource : illustrations
Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/25.
Summary  "Fiscal policy in New Zealand has seen a consolidation of the Government’s position and continuing refinements to the institutional framework and Budget processes. The key institutional change has been the introduction of the Fiscal Responsibility Act 1994. The paper sets out the background to the fiscal policy framework, including fiscal history and various institutional changes in the public sector. This paper is a companion paper to Treasury Working Paper 01/24 by Angela Barnes and Steve Leith."—Publisher's website.

Physical Details: 1 online resource
Summary: "Laudanum. Irish whiskey. The tried and true escape routes of bordello madam Hennessey Reed. On this occasion she suspects even their combined magic will not soothe her distress. The girl lying violated on the undertaker’s table will remain dead, wounds horrifying and inexplicable, reminiscent of Indian sacrifice. Hennessey treasures the uneasy peace she has found in the remote town of Melancholy in 1880s Idaho Territory. However the discovery of three more young victims - all girls of similar age to her daughter Evie - compromises this hard-won equilibrium when she recognizes one of the girls. Usually content to tend her own business and leave others to mind theirs, Hennessey decides U.S. Marshal Rafael Cooper requires her help to search for the killer but acknowledges, if consulted, he may not necessarily agree. Although helped by an eclectic group dedicated to the barstools in her saloon, she is hindered by demons stifled by addiction and myopic hatred of Jedidiah Cannon: a man from her past she is convinced is involved in the present-day murders. So with her Bowie strapped to her calf and wolfhound Raven at her side Hennessey sets out to investigate - a one-woman stampede"--Publisher information.

Summary  "After settling into a new job, new home, and new living arrangements, Andersson Dexter has finally found a comfortable life in both the physical and virtual worlds. But that sense of security is blown apart when an explosion rocks Dex's real-life Nice neighborhood. He and his colleagues begin an investigation into a string of seemingly senseless and random vandalism attacks that remind them all of similar assaults in the simulated world Marionette City. While at first the attacks seem more like a nuisance than a threat, Dex discovers that there are more serious - even fatal - consequences. As the trail leads Dex closer and closer to home, he is forced to confront the lengths he is willing to go for justice"--Distributor's website.

Summary "While holidaying at his father's house, Jake explores Wellington's wild south coast, with its high cliffs, biting winds, and its fierce seals. When he stumbles upon a perfectly preserved sealskin, hidden in a crevice at Red Rocks, he's compelled to take it home and hide it under his bed, setting off a chain of events that threatens to destroy his family. Red Rocks takes the Celtic myth of the selkies, or seal people, and transplants it into the New Zealand landscape, throwing an ordinary boy into an adventure tinged with magic"--Publisher information.

Summary
"Straight Circle tells of an incredible journey of two lifetimes lived simultaneously. Alison and Philippe are pursued relentlessly by the actual enemy they intended hunting down and bringing to justice. The Neo Nazi arm of The National Front Extremists protect the Milice…Traitors who exposed brave Frenchmen and women to the Gestapo during the occupation of France in WW2. The Milice were traitors who to this day hold positions of power in commerce, politics and the high church within present day France. The Neo Nazis ruthlessly hound Alison, Philippe and Francois across the roof of Europe. Their quarry flee across the high Alps, sheltering in the very Monasteries that had been utilized by The Odessa at the end of the war. This escape route across Europe’s borders was known by the Nazis as The Monastery Route. Although this is now present day France, the price to pay if captured is the same – certain death. The cold brutal reality coupled with the strong spiritual undercurrent of this story will leave you gasping"--Amazon.com

<td>Summary</td>
<td>&quot;‘Surviving Schizophrenia’ chronicles a path where biochemical intervention is not the sole factor relevant to mental illness... Varied ‘world views’ – Christianity, Maori Pacifica lore, or the credo of a New Age – which have influenced myself – demand a broad approach to mental health... Reckless prescription of drugs should not substitute exclusively for alternative therapies. As schizophrenia appears in early adulthood, recognition of the vice of youth – alcohol, sex, drugs – should impel professionals to tackle the degenerate social effects of mental illness – alcohol abuse, drug abuse, itinerancy, prostitution”--Amazon.com</td>

Physical Details  1 online resource : colour illustrations
Summary  "A teddy bear comes into a little boy's life in 1950 when his mother is about to have a new baby. The teddy tells the story of his life, being dragged around, inside and out, on bikes, in wheelbarrows, on all sorts of adventures, and always being well loved. He even learns to read with the boy. As Teddy tells his story, he's also telling the boy's story. And the boy, of course, grows up, and Teddy gets left behind sometimes, once even on the beach overnight. Eventually the boy grows up and Teddy is put away in a trunk where he stays, for 17 years, when he is rediscovered by the boy's three daughters"--Publisher information.

Summary "Bailey has a lot of secrets, and a lot of scars, both of which she'd like to keep hidden. Unfortunately, Pine Hills Resort isn't the kind of place where anyone can keep anything hidden for long. When Bailey arrives, she just wants to get through summer quietly, spending as much time in the water as she can. Then she meets Adam. Bailey's not looking to make friends, but Adam isn't easy to ignore. Neither is his ex-girlfriend, Clare. As Bailey grows closer to Adam, she draws Clare's animosity. Will Bailey be able to keep her past a secret, or will Clare discover and reveal the sinister truth about how Bailey really got her scars?"--Print back cover.

Summary  "It's 1917 and Jack enlists. And although 13-year-old Tom is envious of his elder brother, he soon changes his mind as the reality of war becomes more apparent. We follow Jack's story through his letters home and through the eyes of his younger brother. Tom writes about life at home in New Zealand: living with Mum and their young sister, Amy, learning to hunt with his uncle, getting a puppy and learning to knit...for the war effort. Jack writes of his first-hand experience in Trentham, the troop ship, Britain, France, the Battle of Messines and finally, Passchendaele"--Publisher information.

<td>&quot;New Zealand is at a crossroads. People are increasingly concerned about where we are headed. Can we improve our appalling statistics on poverty and violence? What about work - will we all be replaced by robots? Will our children (let alone our grandchildren) be able to afford to buy a house? Can we clean up our rivers? This book looks at many aspects of our lives and our nation. Experts in their fields write about the challenges that face us and the opportunities we have to make changes for the better&quot;--Publisher information.</td>

Summary: "While everyone else prepares for war, Elaina is on a divine mission to restore peace. She grew up believing she was an orphan, but Elaina now knows who and what she is, and she’s learning how to use her new powers over nature, life, and death to achieve her goals. Heavy snow is falling in Arra, and its army and royal court are hiding in caves from the Destaurian invaders. Elaina, her mentor Alessa, and Queen Alethea have journeyed northward to secure allies for a counterstrike. Meanwhile, Elaina's love Prince Jaimin learns how to inspire his people, and Jaimin's best friend and advisor Natasha struggles with her feelings for him. Even if the counterstrike succeeds, peace is not assured. Ultimately, Elaina must travel far into a hostile land to find and heal the enemy king. And she will need the help of a family she never knew she had"--Amazon.com

Title  The economics of education : vouchers and peer group effects / Thomas J Nechyba

Author  Nechyba, Thomas J., 1968- author.

Physical Details  1 online resource

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 98/5.

Summary  "Lessons from the history of US school reforms and empirical analysis have painted a picture of schools as complex institutions producing a product that is influenced by the various choices made by parents and school bureaucracies who respond to institutional incentives. School vouchers change the incentives faced by these agents. This paper finds that when parents can choose schooling independent of housing, greater residential integration results, which brings with it much better equity properties than a more simple analysis would imply. While the fears by some that schools will become increasingly differentiated under voucher policies are well founded, this greater differentiation does not have to imply greater inequities in educational opportunities. In fact, under some plausible scenarios, the greater differentiation of schools leads to greater equity and greater efficiency in both public and private schooling."--Publisher's website.

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 02/05.

Summary  "Demographic forecasts predict that over the next fifty years the proportion of people in New Zealand over the age of 65 will more than double, from 12 percent in 1999 to 26 percent in 2050. This paper reviews potential economic implications of this demographic change in the following broad categories: Demographic change, Labour Markets, Fiscal Impacts, Capital Markets, and Long-run economic growth effects. A synopsis is made of the key economic and demographic issues relating to each category, and the paper highlights those issues to be prioritised in further research."--Publisher's website.

The effect of New Zealand Superannuation eligibility age on the labour force participation of older people / Roger Hurnard.

Hurnard, Roger, author.

1 online resource : colour illustrations

Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 05/09.

"New Zealand experienced a sharp rise in labour force participation rates among older people over the period 1991–2001. This stands in contrast to the experience of most other OECD countries where such participation rates have been in steady decline. The predominant reason for this turnaround was that the age of eligibility for New Zealand Superannuation, the universal public pension, was raised from 60 to 65 over a nine-year period. Combining an earlier reduction in eligibility age with this later policy reversal, this paper estimates the effect of public pension eligibility on the labour force participation of different age groups. The paper discusses why particular features of New Zealand’s pension system mean that the strength and rapidity of the response to a rise in eligibility age might not be repeatable in other settings."--Publisher's website.

The effects of class size on the long-run growth in reading abilities and early adult outcomes in The Christchurch Health and Development Study / Michael A. Boozer and Tim Maloney.

Boozer, Michael Alan, 1966- author.

1 online resource : illustrations

Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 01/14.

"The conflicting evidence over class size effects drawn from observational (or correlational) studies on academic achievement or labor market outcomes has provoked great debate in both academic and public policy arenas. The recent experimental evidence from the United States due to the Project STAR demonstration run in Tennessee in the 1980s has added strong evidence in favor of one type of an effect, whereby initial test score gains were maintained only through sustained smaller class sizes. But this has not resolved the debate by any means. In this paper we utilize the unique feature of the Christchurch Health and Development Study (CHDS) in that children are sampled for extremely long individual histories of their class size experiences as well as their test score and early adult outcomes. We argue that one implication of Project STAR is that only persistent class size reduction policies may have detectable effects, and so the long histories of the type recorded by the CHDS are necessary to detect class size effects. We account for the observational nature of the CHDS (in that children were not randomly assigned to different class sizes) by examining the long-run trends in test score growth, rather than levels."--Publisher's website.

The effects on New Zealand households of an increase in the petrol excise tax / John Creedy.

Creedy, John, 1949- author.

1 online resource : colour illustrations

Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 04/01.

This paper reports estimates of the potential welfare effects of hypothetical increases in the petrol excise tax in New Zealand. Equivalent variations, for a range of household types and total expenditure levels, are obtained along with distributional measures. Household demand responses are modelled using the Linear Expenditure System, where parameters vary by total expenditure level and household type. The effects on inequality were found to be negligible, but the marginal excess burdens typically ranged between 35 and 55 cents per dollar of additional revenue.”--Publisher's website.

An empirical investigation of fiscal policy in New Zealand / Iris Claus, Aaron Gill, Boram Lee and Nathan McLellan.

Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 06/08.

"This paper examines the effects of fiscal policy, measured by changes in government spending and net tax (government tax revenue less transfer payments), on New Zealand GDP. The framework of analysis is a structural vector autoregression (VAR) model of the New Zealand economy, employing and extending estimation techniques used by Blanchard and Perotti (2002). This model is then used to examine the dynamic effects of changes in government spending, taxes and transfers on GDP and the contributions of discretionary fiscal policy to New Zealand business cycles."--Publisher's website.

Title  The excess burden of taxation and why it (approximately) quadruples when the tax rate doubles / John Creedy.

Author  Creedy, John, 1949- author.

Physical Details  1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series  Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 03/29.

Summary  "The 'excess burden' of taxation represents an efficiency loss which must be compared with any perceived gains arising either from income redistribution or the non-transfer expenditure carried out by the government. An important property is that, under certain assumptions, it increases disproportionately with the tax rate. This result provides the basis of a general presumption in favour of a broad-based and low tax rate system: any exemptions which reduce the tax base inevitably raise the tax rate required to obtain an unchanged amount of total tax revenue. The aims of this paper are to provide a nontechnical explanation of the concepts of welfare change and excess burden used in the public finance literature, and to demonstrate the result that an approximation to this burden depends on the square of the tax rate."--Publisher's website.

Title The impact of monetary policy on New Zealand business cycles and inflation variability / Robert A Buckle, Kunhong Kim and Nathan McLellan.

Author Buckle, Robert, author.

Physical Details 1 online resource : colour illustrations

Series Treasury working paper (New Zealand. Treasury) ; 03/09.

Summary "This paper uses the open economy structural VAR model developed in Buckle, Kim, Kirkham, McLellan and Sharma (2002) to evaluate the impact of monetary policy on New Zealand business cycles and inflation variability and the output/inflation variability trade-off. The model includes a forward-looking Taylor Rule to identify monetary policy and the impact of monetary policy is evaluated by deriving a monetary policy index using a procedure suggested by Dungey and Pagan (2000). Monetary policy has generally been counter-cyclical, thereby reducing business cycles and inflation variability. Exceptions are in 1994 and 1995 when monetary policy accentuated the business cycle upswing and in 1998 when monetary policy accentuated the recession, although its impact in 1998 was small relative to the impact of adverse climatic conditions. During the initial years of inflation targeting monetary policy tended to simultaneously reduce inflation and output variability. From 1996 to 2001 monetary policy was less effective in reducing inflation and output variability. This latter period included a brief experiment with a Monetary Conditions Index, the Asian crisis and a large adverse domestic climate shock."--Publisher's website.

Summary "As children in Calcutta, Ashim and Abhay made a small mistake that split their family forever. Thirty years later, Ashim has re-entered his brother’s life, with blame and retribution on his mind. It seems nothing short of smashing Abhay’s happy home will make good the damage from the past. At least, this is what Abhay and his wife Lena are certain is happening. A brother has travelled all the way from small-town India to New Zealand bearing ancient - and false - grudges, and with the implacable objective of blowing up every part of his younger brother’s life. Reconciliation was just a Trojan horse. But is Ashim really the villain he appears to be, or is there a method to his havoc?"

Summary: "Com a aventura do último verão na Super Casa na Árvore a ser agora uma memória desvanecente, a Amanda está a achar difícil adaptar-se ao terceiro ciclo. Caras novas, professores novos, enfiada numa turma diferente das suas amigas e, como se isso não fosse já mau o suficiente, ela é agora uma "miúda pequena" outra vez. Que mais é que lhe pode acontecer? Entretanto, o Ben sente-se no topo do mundo e está a adorar a escola com os seus amigos. A irmã está numa escola diferente e finalmente fora do seu pé - a vida era fantástica! Tudo isto muda quando um anúncio surpresa volta a reunir a equipa dos Projetos Juvenis numa competição a duas escolas para construir a melhor exposição para o Dia das Bruxas"--Print back cover.

Summary "A Amanda estava aterrorizada. Claro que ela e as amigas tinham construido uma enorme Casa na Arvore e uma espetacular Casa Assombrada - mas agora tudo estava mais complicado. Aqueles projetos tinham sido para divertimento - mas este ia ser avaliado! Ela e as suas parceiras de laboratorio tem que fazer um projeto para a Feira de Ciencias da escola - mas nao tem ideia nenhuma sobre como começar ou mesmo do que fazer. Sera que finalmente encontraram um desafio a sua altura? Entretanto, os rapazes tambem enfrentam grandes problemas, e o resultado do seu projeto pode ser uma questao de vida ou de morte! OK, talvez nao morte a serio, mas podem acabar com frio, molhados e esfomeados e sem tecnologias... durante um fim de semana inteiro! Junta-te aos Projetos Juvenis na sua terceira grande aventura, enquanto os Jovens se unem para desvendar os misterios de Ratos, Homens... e Marshmallows"--Amazon.com

Summary "Os amigos Ben, James, Tim e Tom, de 10 anos de idade, encontram a árvore perfeita numa floresta perto da escola e começam a construir a super casa na árvore. As coisas começam com uma queda e pioram quando a irmã de Ben, Amanda, os descobre e a trabalhar secretamente na casa da árvore. Logo a seguir, eles apercebem-se de que as raparigas estão a construir uma propria casa na mesma árvore - e tem melhor aspecto do que os rapazes! Como e que elas estão a fazer aquilo? Qual e a sua arma secreta? Depois do acidente, tudo muda e os rapazes sao forcados a fazer equipa com as raparigas - como se isso alguma vez fosse funcionar! Este livro apresenta conceitos basicos da Gestao de Projetos aos jovens, atraves de uma historia divertida e curtas licoes ensinadas a uma das raparigas pelo seu pai, que e (obviamente) um Gestor de Projeto. Ela aplica o que aprende e de repente as raparigas estao a frente dos rapazes que começaram a construir sem um plano. Junta-te a esta improvavel equipa de construtores de casas na árvore - quatro rapazes e quatro raparigas - que acabam por trabalhar em conjunto para completar a super casa na árvore!"--Amazon.com

Summary "O problema do sucesso e que as pessoas esperam sempre mais de ti, pensou a Amanda. Olhou fixamente para o pedaco de papel dobrado que estava em cima da secretaria, na esperanca de que ele desaparecesse. Porque e que eu disse sim? interrogou-se. Devia estar maluca! Fazemos um par de projetos e agora querem que eu faça isto? Com uma lentidao agonizante, a Amanda abriu o papel para ler mais uma vez aquelas palavras terríveis, as palavras que eram o seu compromisso. A coisa que ela tinha prometido fazer. Sim, nao ha problema, Sra. Moldiva. Claro! Vai ser divertido! Em letras grandes e gordas, no topo da folha de papel amarrotada, estavam as palavras: Procura-se: Organizador para o Baile do Dia dos Namorados A Amanda estremeceu. Vai ser um desastre!
